SCHNEIDER JURY REPORTED UNABLE TO AGREE

TOTAL VETOES ARE BROUGHT TO $570,465

JUDGE TO KEEP JURY OUT FEW HOURS LONGER

Foreman of Jury in Open Court Says That They Appear Unable to Agree

DEBATED ALL NIGHT

Jury Has Held Case Since 5 o'clock Yesterday Afternoon when Argument Ended

The jury which reported to Judge Jansoni at 3 o'clock this afternoon was again sent out by him to continue their deliberation. It is thought that they would probably not be dismissed for at least 48 hours.

The jury holding the Kasimir Schneider case in its hands, told Judge Jansoni at noon today it was hopelessly divided.

Judge Jansoni, however, sent the jury back to deliberate a few hours more in an effort to reach an agreement.

The jury got the case about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Last night's argument was sent to Judge Jansoni, to meet the jury, to give instructions. The judge informed the jury he could do this only in open court, with the defendant and his attorney present, and the request was withdrawn.

The jurors remained up arguing most of the night. It is understood. Toward noon today they decided they could not agree.

No statement was made as to how the jury voted.

One of the stumbling blocks, in the minds of some persons, was that Schneider is charged with first degree murder, by poisoning his wife, who died last June 15, and no other degree of murder can be charged in a poison case. It was up to the jury to give him imprisonment or freedom.

The defendant in the court-house met the jury this morning, waiting outside for the verdict while the 12 jurors were struggling inside the jury room.

Rumors were that the jury was about evenly divided.

NEW TELLS HOW HE'LL RUN JOB IN U. S. POSTOFFICE

Will Make No Promises; Would Be Judged by Performances Only

By HARRY HUNT
NEA Staff Correspondent
Washington, March 10.—Performance, not promises, must form the basis for the public's judgment of the administration of the Postoffice Department under its new Chief, Harry New.

"I'm not making a promise," New said as he squared away for his new job as head of 395,000 postal employees and head of the biggest business organization in the world.

"I have no plans for any campaigns, reorganizations or stunts. I am going into a job, of which I have only a theoretical knowledge, with only one idea—to administer the affairs of the Postoffice Department in a business-like way to the best of my ability.

Up to Public

"If I make a success of it, the public will find it out.

"If I make a failure of it, the public will soon make me find it out.

For as I know, I am taking over the department at a time when it is functioning in good shape."

"How about the recommendation of Postmaster General Work, made in retiring, that postmasters and other appointees be taken from civil service and political patronage and their selection handled directly by the department on a business basis?" I asked.

"Not a word—not a word!" New answered, apparently sensing a lead to the subject of patronage generally.

In political circles it has been recently stated that New's appointment was a direct move by the president to put into the office a man who would use it to strengthen the administration's political organization for the battle of 1924. But on all approaches to that subject the postmaster general had but one answer.

"Not a word!"

POTTERY GIFT.

The best example of pottery work of the Mandan Indians to reach the North Dakota Historical society has been loaned by J. W. Neuma of Medora. The pot, nearly a foot in height, was found near the Little Missouri river, about 15 miles north of Medora.

CLEAR WAY FOR BIG PACKERS' MERGER PLAN

Final Details as to Value of Armour Certificates Agreed On

WON'T AWAIT COURT

Will Announce Merger Before Secretary Wallace's Complaint Is Heard

Chicago, Mar. 10. Proposing to depur to a complaint of illegal combination filed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Armour and Company, and Morris and Company, two of the five leading meat packing concerns, have virtually consummated the proposed packing merger which remains only its formal statement to make it legal.

The statement, announcements here asserted, probably would be issued Tuesday or Wednesday.

The one stumbling block that remained to be removed, that of Armour and company's stock values, passed successfully yesterday.

Adjudicators of the stock values, James B. Foigan of the First National Bank of Chicago and Albert Wiggan, New York banker, arrived at an agreement on the valuations after a conference with Nelson Morris, head of the Morris and company, and other officials of the concern at Ocean Park, Fla.

No announcement was forthcoming from Mr. Foigan as to the value placed on Armour and company's certificates that are to be exchanged for Morris and company's stock.

The merger of the two concerns represents a combination of capital of upwards of $500,000,000.

Attorney-General Daugherty recently found no basis against the merger. But the plan for the merger was carried on and then Secretary Wallace filed this complaint of illegal combination.

The merger of the two concerns denied the allegation and proposed to prove their contention when the case is called for hearing. It was said here that the merger probably would be officially announced before the hearing starts.

ETHER CAUSES 60 TO FAINT IN STREET CAR

Passenger was Taking Liquid Home to "Dope" His Cold—Is Arrested

New York, Mar. 10.—Sixty passengers on a Seventh avenue subway train were overcome early today by ether, escaping from a can carried by Richard Chanorro, a young South American, who told the police he was taking it home for a cold.

When the train pulled in at the 60th street station practically every passenger, in one car was fainting away, and some women were hysterical. Two passengers were removed to a hospital. Chanorro was arrested.

HUGE STOCKS OF WHEAT ON DAKOTA FARMS

Approximately 25 Per Cent of 1922 Crop Yet to be Marketed, Says Report

THE HAY RESERVE BIG

Moderate Winter Feeding Demands Indicated Excess of Hay Will be Carried Over

Approximately 25 percent of the 1922 wheat crop in North Dakota still is on the farms of the state, according to estimates of J. C. Diamond, agricultural statistician, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Grand Forks.

Added to the huge total of 28,344,000 bushels of wheat still remaining on farms on March 1, it is estimated by Mr. Diamond that there is a March reserve of 27 percent of corn, 40 percent of the total white potato crop, is unused, 46 percent of the oats crop, 34 percent of the barley crop and 40 percent of the hay crop still is being held by farmers.

The reserves on the farm on March 1 are recorded far above the 10-year average, as shown by statistics of the federal bureau.

Stocks in Reserve
The stocks on farms March 1, in bushels, are given as follows:

Stocks on Farms	March 1—1922	March 1—1921	March 1—1920
Corn	1,019,000	3,258,000	1,825,000
Wheat	28,344,000	15,312,000	18,929,000
Oats	26,750,000	20,112,000	22,287,000
Barley	5,739,000	5,436,000	5,537,000
Hay	1,529,000 (tons)	1,228,000	1,228,000

"The biggest single factor for the large reserve being held for the survey," says the report, "lies in the increased production last season, while elevator congestion and moderate winter feeding demands in the case of coarse grains also have contributed."

It is especially noted that slightly more than one-third of the last year's hay crop is still in reserve, which will make it possible for many farmers to carry hay over the coming season should there be a shortage in production.

The production of corn, the report says, has been increasing steadily during the past five years, acreage having jumped from 132,000 acres in 1919 to 680,000 acres in 1922. This increase has been slightly in advance of farm needs, a 27 percent reserve being estimated on March 1.

The 1922 crop was estimated at 25,704,000, which was above that of 1921 but slightly below the 10-year average. The reserve on March 1 was estimated at 34 percent.

Wheat Reserve.
Regarding wheat, and hay and potatoes, the report says:

"WHEAT.—The 1922 crop at 28,344,000 bushels was fully 50 percent above the total of 1921, which increase combined with those in the region west and north helped produce at the beginning of the current marketing season, one of the worst crop shortages in recent years. The market movement consequently has been prolonged. The distribution of the increased production in 1922 corresponds closely with the general averages which in general are higher in the western third and northeast quarter of the state. The March 1, farm holdings are indicated at 23 percent or 28,344,000 bushels, compared with 15,342,000 bushels a year ago and the 10-year average of 18,929,000. An unusually high quality was shown for the 1922 crop by our survey last November which placed 92.8 percent of last year's spring wheat within grades 1, 2 and 3 compared with 65.9 per cent.

BISONS BEAT FLICKERTAILS; SCORE, 23 TO 16

Fargo, Mar. 10.—Bison tossers of the North Dakota Agricultural college advanced a step toward second place in the North Central Conference by defeating the North Dakota university basketball team here last night, 23 to 16. The game was hard-fought, with much unnecessary rough play. The victors outclassed the Grand Forks team in every particular.

The guard play of Flem and Arnold was exceptional and Blakeley and Buschler, veteran university center.

The two teams will play again tonight.

INDICTMENTS TAKEN UNDER CONSIDERATION

Expected Judge McKenna Will Take Three Weeks in Bank Case

BRIEFS ARE ORDERED

Questionable Whether Attorney General and Assistants Can Appear Before Jury

Fargo, Mar. 10. Possibly three weeks will elapse before decision in regard to the validity of indictment returned in the defunct Scandinavian-American bank case here will be handed down by Judge McKenna.

Arguments on the motion to quash the indictment against H. J. Hagen, of Seattle, one of the defendants, were completed late yesterday.

The court ordered that briefs on part of the defendants must be filed. He said the state may have a like time to file briefs, after which the case would be taken under advisement for a short time.

Charges of misconduct on the part of state officers and employees in presenting the case before the county grand jury were made by witnesses for the defense. It is a mooted point whether or not the attorney general of the state or his assistants may appear before the grand jury except in certain cases, and the defense put great stress on this point.

PIPE LEAK CAUSES FIRE IN DISTRICT

One Man Burned to Death and Heavy Property Loss Near Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Mar. 10.—An unidentified man believed to have been burned to death is missing and a number of houses and a dairy were destroyed by a fire which was sweeping an area of more than a quarter of a mile in length and nearly 300 yards wide following a break in an oil pipe along the highway near Arbesino, 18 miles southwest of here, according to telephone reports received early this morning.

Residents of the district left their homes soon after the blaze started and none are thought to be injured. A stranger in an automobile failed while attempting to pass over the flame-swept road despite protests of a number of persons. Cries for help were heard soon after he disappeared. Rescue parties located the automobile which was destroyed, but no trace of its occupant could be found.

The fire was brought under control soon after shutting off the oil supply but because of the saturated condition of the ground it is expected to burn for sometime.

BANKER FOUND DEAD IN AUTO ON LONELY ROAD

$61,000 IN CHECKS

Institution of Fred Popp Under Examination—Financier Was Despondent

Chicago, Mar. 10.—With the death of Fred Popp, president of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank, made the subject of one investigation another inquiry was ordered into the accounts of his bank by state examiners working behind closed doors.

The bank president's body was discovered early yesterday morning in a small coupe on a lonely road near here, a bullet hole in its head and an automatic pistol, with one shell exploded nearby.

Bank directors in an emergency meeting last night attended by state bank examiners and officials of two banking associations, said the institution was solvent and an official statement suspending operations of the bank was issued.

Discovery of $61,000 of cancelled checks in the dead president's clothes, all made payable to William Kopp, son of the president, was one of the details in connection with the banker's death that first came to attention of state bank examiners.

Investigators said that Popp had been despondent for sometime because of his wife's ill health and had found it necessary to take sleeping pills.

Banks said last night the Logan bank had always been considered one of the strong outlying banks and were at a loss to explain Mr. Popp's death. The institution was credited with resources of $2,700,052.

PEACE WANTED IN RUHR, SAY DISPATCHES

German Workers, Industrialists and French Represented as of One View

NO ONE IS GAINING

French Manufacturers Have Suffered Through Impairment of Shipments

London, Mar. 10.—Although offering no very definite evidence to support their statement some of the British correspondents in the Ruhr assert there is a tendency toward peace and both sides would welcome a settlement, ending the strain of the last few weeks.

Both the workers and the industrialists on the German side are tired of the struggle, the correspondents say, the former seeing no hope of winning while at the same time their sufferings are augmented daily.

The industrialists, with the exception of one or two of the most influential, are feeling increasingly the pinch in lost trade and are fearing for the future.

The French on their part are represented as suffering scarcely less. They have not got what they went into the Ruhr to obtain, and French industries are being seriously affected by the curtailment of the coal supply.

The suggestion in these despatches is that it will be impossible for present conditions to continue much longer.

With regard to the customs barrier around the Rhineland it is asserted that other trade interests besides those of Great Britain are restricted.

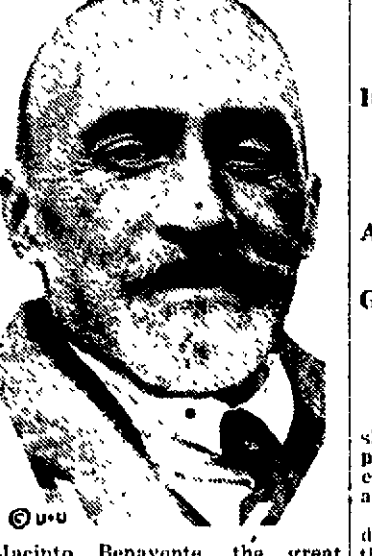

LADY ASTOR SCORES SUCCESS WITH BRITISH PROHIBITION BILL

London, March 10.—Even though Lady Astor's prohibition bill is not expected to become law despite the fact that it passed its second reading in the House of Commons yesterday by a vote of 338 to 56, it is admitted on all sides that she achieved a remarkable parliamentary success and enhanced her reputation as a member of the British legislature.

Most of the newspapers give Lady Astor front page space this morning.

PRESIDENT OF NORMAL GLAD ITS CLOSING

Head of Bottineau School Tells Nestos He Did Right in Using Veto

GIVES HIS REASONS

School Does Not Serve Need and Lacks Local Support, He Says

The action of Governor Nestos in causing discontinuance of the Bottineau normal school on July 1 through executive veto is commended by President V. L. Mangum of that institution.

President Mangum, saying he has worked hard for the institution and that it represents his "heart and drink" holds nevertheless that it is for the good of the state that the institution be discontinued.

The institution, contrary to statements of Bottineau residents, does not fulfill local needs nor command solid support from Bottineau county, the institution president says. His letter to Governor Nestos follows:

My dear Governor Nestos: I desire to send you a word of commendation on your action in discontinuing the Forestry State Normal school, formerly called the School of Forestry. It may seem somewhat strange for me to take this view and so a word or two of explanation. The welfare and development of this institution has been my meat and drink for five years now. I have worked without stint. I have gone out and beat the highways and hedges to secure students. I have strengthened the faculty and put the work upon a respectable basis. According to the State Board of Regents at the time I came here this school had been somewhat of an eyesore to the board and they desired me to come here and see what could be done.

The work here has been held in high respect in this part of the state for several years and yet we do not command the enrollment even of this county. They will not come up the branch from Rugby, nor Barton, nor Wilton City, nor even from Omemee. We can draw students from the inland territory and a part of the students residing in the few towns north of this branch of the Great Northern. But the students from Lansford in this county do not come here. It cannot be said therefore that this institution is even an institution for Bottineau county.

Lack of Support.
Another serious objection to maintaining a state normal school in this community is the very serious difficulties involved in using the town schools for practice teaching. For two years I acted as city superintendent and had a contract for the third year which was broken by the new school hours after two months.

ARE HELD NECESSARY

Governor in Comment Says by Proper Economies Institutions Can Get Along

Governor R. A. Nestos today slashed $266,615 more from the appropriations of the eighteenth general assembly, bringing the total amount of his vetoes to $570,465.

With announcement of vetoes today, the Governor completed his action upon appropriation bills of the general assembly leaving the total of appropriations $752,021.25, below the appropriation of the legislature of 1921 for the biennial period.

The total of appropriations of the assembly for the biennial period, 1923 to 1925, stood after the veto at $643,390.55 compared to $9,008,355.58 as fixed by the legislature, and $2,189,911.83 as fixed by the 1921 legislature. The appropriations of the 1923 legislature before vetoes were applied, were $181,556.25 below the 1921 appropriations.

Governor Nestos, in a brief statement, said:

"Unfortunately the executive is limited in his vetoes by the requirements that each item must either be disallowed in full or permitted to stand, even though considered excessive. This situation makes it doubly difficult to make the reductions without injury to the institutions affected.

"I have sought, however, as far as possible to make the eliminations among the items of maintenance and practically all of the institutions for which collections can be made available for replacements under this provision.

"While I regret that conditions exist that make it necessary to curtail expenses and to cut appropriations, I am confident, however, that by proper economies in each institution and the use of the institutional fees and collections to preserve all essential work that the cut in appropriations will not cause no injury to the essential service of each of these institutions.

Aggregate Amount of the items disallowed in the case of each institution is as follows:

Institution	Amount
University	$42,810.00
Agricultural college	43,325.00
Mandan Training School	33,000.00
Capitol budget	21,000.00
Dickinson normal	24,500.00
Hospital for the insane, Jamestown	15,000.00
State penitentiary	16,500.00
Valley City normal	11,500.00
Wahpeton School of Science	11,400.00
Mayville normal	10,850.00
School for Deaf and Dumb, Devils Lake	10,000.00
Minot normal	6,300.00
School for Feeble Minded, Grafton	6,000.00
Dunseith Tuberculosis sanitarium	6,000.00
Ellendale normal and Industrial	6,000.00
School for Blind, Bath	2,400.00
Rate	2,400.00

Amount previously vetoed.....$266,615.00

Total amount vetoed.....$570,465.00

The appropriation for the completion of the Dickinson Normal school, building was allowed to stand. It was stated that the Governor, after careful consideration with the board of administration, had decided that since the addition was not a large one and was needed badly for the institutions, it should be allowed to stand, in completing it would cost $25,000 additional, concluded to let the item stand and instead decreased the other appropriations for the institution by $24,500 with the assent of President May.

Girls Cottage Out
Included in the vetoes was $30,000 for a girls' cottage at the Mandan state training school, the cut being made, it was said, on approval of the head of the institution, on the ground that other building appropriations will relieve conditions there. Decreases made for the University of North Dakota and Agricultural College generally were items which can be made up from institutional fees, and not involve abandoning any line of work now and so away.

Members of the board of administration regard the decreases as very material in view of the increase in attendance and population of the institutions, but believe economical handling of appropriations will obviate any harm.

WEATHER OUTLOOK.

Washington, Mar. 10.—Weather outlook for the week beginning Monday:

Upper Mississippi Valley—Fairer part, although rain or snow is probable middle of the week; temperature normal or above.

CLEAR WAY FOR BIG PACKERS' MERGER PLAN

Final Details as to Value of Armour Certificates Agreed On

WON'T AWAIT COURT

Will Announce Merger Before Secretary Wallace's Complaint Is Heard

Chicago, Mar. 10.—Proposing to demand a complaint of illegal combination filed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Armour and Company and Morris and Company, two of the five leading meat packing concerns, have virtually consummated the proposed packing merger which remains only its formal statement to make it legal.

The statement, announcements here asserted, probably would be issued Tuesday or Wednesday.

The one stumbling block that remained to be removed, that of Armour and company's stock values, passed successfully yesterday.

HUGE STOCKS OF WHEAT ON DAKOTA FARMS

Approximately 25 Per Cent of 1922 Crop Yet to be Marketed, Says Report

THE HAY RESERVE BIG

Moderate Winter Feeding Demands Indicated Excess of Hay Will be Carried Over

Approximately 25 percent of the 1922 wheat crop in North Dakota still is on the farms of the state, according to estimates of J. G. Diamond, agricultural statistician, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Grand Forks.

Added to the huge total of 28,344,000 bushels of wheat still remaining on farms on March 1, it is estimated by Mr. Diamond that there is a March reserve of 27 percent of corn, 40 percent of the total white potato crop is unsold, 46 percent of the oats crop, 34 percent of the barley crop and 40 percent of the hay crop still is being held by farmers.

The reserves on the farm on March 1 are recorded far above the 10-year average, as shown by statistics of the federal bureau.

Stocks in Reserve
The stocks on farms March 1, in bushels, are given as follows:

Stocks on Farms March 1—Bushels	1922	10-Year Average
Corn	2,258,000	1,823,000
Wheat	28,344,000	18,929,000
Oats	36,256,000	29,423,000
Barley	8,729,000	5,436,000
Hay	1,229,000 tons	5,537,000
Potatoes	128,000	26,287,000

"The biggest single factor for the larger reserves, according to the survey, 'lies in the increased production last season, while elevator congestion and moderate winter feeding demands have kept the surplus grains also have contributed'."

It is especially noted that slightly more than one-third of the last year's hay crop is still in reserve, which will make it possible for many farmers to carry hay over the coming season should there be a shortage in production.

The production of corn, the report says, has been increasing steadily during the past five years, acreage having jumped from 432,000 acres in 1919 to 680,000 acres in 1922. This increase has been slightly in advance of farm needs.

A 27 percent reserve being estimated on March 1. The 1922 corn crop was about a million bushels larger than its predecessor.

The oats production, placed at 78,804,000 for 1922 as compared with 48,792,000 the previous year, and a 10 year average of 59,880,000 bushels, has resulted in a March 1 reserve of 46 percent, much above that of previous years. The same is true of barley. The 1922 crop was estimated at 25,704,000, which was above that of 1921 but slightly below the 10-year average. The reserve on March 1 was estimated at 34 percent.

Wheat Reserves
Regarding wheat, and hay and potatoes, the report says.

WHEAT.—The 1922 crop at 28,344,000 bushels was valued at 125 percent above that of 1921, which increase combined with those in the region west and north helped produce at the beginning of the current marketing season, one of the worst car shortages in recent years.

Changes of misconduct on the part of state officers and employees in presenting the case before the Cass county grand jury were made by witnesses for the defense. It is a moot point whether or not the attorney-general of the state or his assistants may appear before the grand jury in certain cases, and the defense put great stress on this point.

Questionable Whether Attorney General and Assistants Can Appear Before Jury

Fargo, Mar. 10. Possibly three weeks will elapse before decision in regard to the validity of indictments returned in the defunct Scandinavian-American bank case here will be handed down by Judge McKenna.

Arguments on the motion to quash the indictment against H. J. Hagen, of Seattle, one of the defendants, were completed late yesterday.

The court ordered that briefs on part of the defendants must be filed. He said the state may have a like time to file briefs, after which the case would be taken under advisement for a short time.

Charges of misconduct on the part of state officers and employees in presenting the case before the Cass county grand jury were made by witnesses for the defense. It is a moot point whether or not the attorney-general of the state or his assistants may appear before the grand jury in certain cases, and the defense put great stress on this point.

Los Angeles, Cal., Mar. 10.—Although offering no very definite evidence to support their statement some of the British correspondents in the Ruhr assert there is a tendency toward peace and both sides would welcome a settlement, ending the strain of the last few weeks.

Both the workers and the industrialists on the German side are tired of the struggle, the correspondents say, the former seeing no hope of winning while at the same time their sufferings are augmented daily.

The industrialists, with the exception of one or two of the most influential, are feeling increasingly the pinch in lost trade and are fearing for the future.

The French on their part are represented as suffering scarcely less. They have not got what they went into the Ruhr to obtain, and French industries are being seriously affected by the curtailment of the coal supply.

The suggestion in these despatches is that it will be impossible for present conditions to continue much longer.

With regard to the customs barrier around the Rhine it is asserted that other trade interests besides those of Great Britain are restricted.

LONDON, March 10.—Even though Lady Astor's prohibition bill is not expected to become law despite the fact that it passed its second reading in the House of Commons yesterday by a vote of 338 to 56, it is admitted on all sides that she achieved a remarkable parliamentary success and enhanced her reputation as a member of the British legislature.

Institution of Fred Popp Under Examination—Financier Was Despondent

Chicago, Mar. 10.—With the death of Fred Popp, president of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank, made the subject of one investigation another inquiry was ordered into the accounts of his bank by state examiners working behind closed doors.

The bank president's body was discovered early yesterday morning in a small coupe on a lonely road near here, a bullet hole in its head and an automatic pistol, with one shell exploded nearby.

Bank directors in an emergency meeting last night attended by state bank examiners and officials of two banking associations, said the institution was solvent and an official statement suspending operations of the bank was issued.

Discovery of $61,000 of cancelled checks in the dead president's clothes, all made payable to William Kopp, son of the president, was one of the details in connection with the financier's death that first came to attention of state bank examiners.

Investigators said that Popp had been despondent for sometime because of his wife's ill health and had found it necessary to take sleeping pills.

Popp died last night the Logan bank had always been considered one of the strong outlying banks and were at a loss to explain Mr. Popp's death. The institution was credited with resources of $2,760,652.

PRESIDENT OF NORMAL GLAD ITS CLOSING

Head of Bottineau School Tells Nestos He Did Right in Using Veto

GIVES HIS REASONS

School Does Not Serve Need and Lacks Local Support, He Says

The action of Governor Nestos in causing discontinuance of the Bottineau normal school on July 1 through executive veto is commended by President V. L. Mangun of that institution.

President Mangun, saying he has worked hard for the institution and that it represents his "meat and drink" holds nevertheless that it is for the good of the state that the institution be discontinued.

The institution, contrary to statements of Bottineau residents, does not fulfill local needs nor command solid support from Bottineau county, the institution president says. His letter to Governor Nestos follows:

My dear Governor Nestos: I desire to send you a word of commendation on your action in discontinuing the Forestry State Normal school, formerly called the School of Forestry. It may seem somewhat strange for me to take this view and so a word or two of explanation. The welfare and development of this institution has been my meat and drink for five years now. I have worked without stint. I have gone out and beat the highways and wedges to secure students. I have strengthened the faculty and put the work upon a respectable basis. According to the State Board of Regents at the time I came here this school had been somewhat of an eyesore to the board and they desired me to come here and see what could be done.

The work here has been held in respect in this part of the state for several years and yet we do not command the enrollment even of this county. They will not come up the branch from Rugby, nor Barton, nor Wilton City, nor even from Omnes.

We can draw students from the inland territory and a part of the students residing in the few towns north on this branch of the Great Northern. But the students from Lansford in this county do not come here. It cannot be said therefore that this institution is even an institution for Bottineau county.

Lack of Support.
Another serious objection to maintaining a state normal school in this community is the very serious difficulties involved in using the town schools for practice teaching. For two years I acted as city superintendent and had a contract for the third year which was broken by the new school board after two months.

Girls Cottage Out
Included in the view was $30,000 for a girls' cottage at the Mandan state training school, the cut being made, it was said, on approval of the head of the institution, on the ground that other building appropriations will relieve condition there. Decreases material in the University of North Dakota and Agricultural College generally were items which can be made up from institutional fees, and do not involve abandoning any line of work now under way.

Members of the board of administration regard the decreases as very material in view of the increase in attendance and population of the institutions, but believe economical handling of appropriations will obviate any harm.

TOTAL VETOES ARE BROUGHT TO $570,465

Items Cut From Many Institutions and Departments of State by Executive

ARE HELD NECESSARY

Governor in Comment Says by Proper Economies Institutions Can Get Along

Governor R. A. Nestos today slashed $266,615 more from the appropriations of the eighteenth general assembly, bringing the total amount of his vetoes to $570,465.00.

With announcement of vetoes today, the Governor completed his action upon appropriation bills of the general assembly leaving the total of appropriations $752,021.56 below the appropriation of the legislature of 1921 for the biennial period.

The total of appropriations of the assembly for the biennial period, 1923 to 1925, stood after the vetoes at $8,437,890.58 compared to $9,008,355.58 as fixed by the legislature, and $9,189,911.83 as fixed by the 1921 legislature. The appropriations of the 1923 legislature before vetoes were applied, were $11,556,255 below the 1921 appropriations.

Governor Nestos, in a brief statement, said:

"Unfortunately the executive is limited in his vetoes by the requirements that each item must either be a necessary expense, or be permitted to stand, even though considered excessive. This situation makes it doubly difficult to make the reductions without injury to the institutions affected."

"I have sought, however, as far as possible to make the eliminations among the items of full permanent value as practically all of the institutional fees and collections can be made available for replacements under this subdivision."

"While I regret that conditions exist that make it necessary to curtail expenses and to cut appropriations, I am confident, however, that by proper economies in each institution and the use of the institutional fees and collections to preserve all essential work that the cut in appropriations made will cause no injury to the essential service of each of these institutions."

The aggregate amount of the items disallowed in the case of each institution is as follows:

University	$42,840.00
Agricultural college	43,325.00
Mandan Training School	33,000.00
Capitol budget	21,000.00
Dickinson normal	24,500.00
Hospital for the insane
Jamestown	15,000.00
Stations, I am confident, however, that by proper economies in each institution and the use of the institutional fees and collections to preserve all essential work that the cut in appropriations made will cause no injury to the essential service of each of these institutions."	16,500.00
Valley City normal	11,500.00
Wahpeton School of Science	11,400.00
Mayville normal	10,850.00
School for Deaf and Dumb, Devils Lake	10,000.00
Minot normal	6,300.00
School for Feeble Minded, Grafton	6,000.00
Dunseith Tuberculosis sanitarium	6,000.00
Ellendale normal and Industrial	6,000.00
School for Blind, Bathgate	2,400.00
Amount previously vetoed	$303,850.00
Total amount vetoed	$570,465.00

The appropriation for the completion of the Dickinson Normal school building was allowed to stand. It was stated that the Governor, the University of North Dakota with the board of administration, had decided that since the addition was not a large one and was needed badly for the institutions, and since architects said delay in completing it would cost $25,000 additional, concluded to let the item stand, and instead decreased the other appropriations for the institution by $24,500 with the assent of President May.

Included in the view was $30,000 for a girls' cottage at the Mandan state training school, the cut being made, it was said, on approval of the head of the institution, on the ground that other building appropriations will relieve condition there. Decreases material in the University of North Dakota and Agricultural College generally were items which can be made up from institutional fees, and do not involve abandoning any line of work now under way.

Members of the board of administration regard the decreases as very material in view of the increase in attendance and population of the institutions, but believe economical handling of appropriations will obviate any harm.

A. B. KROGEN PASSES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Young Business Man Sug-
cumbs to Blood-Poisoning
Complicated by Pneumonia

Arnold Bernhard Krogen, a young business man of Driscoll, age 27 years, passed away this morning at 2:30 o'clock at a local hospital after suffering from blood-poisoning later complicated by an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Krogen was brought to the hospital four weeks ago with blood-poisoning, and later took a cold which quickly developed into pneumonia.

Mr. Krogen is the son of A. O. Krogen of Driscoll, a brother of Oswald Krogen, of Driscoll, and Mrs. R. G. Meyers of New Salem. He received his early education in Driscoll, later attending Concordia college at Moorhead, Minn., and the agricultural college at Fargo. While attending the latter college in 1918 he was a member of the student army training corps and was stationed in Fargo. After his discharge from the army he was employed in Oberlin, where he met Miss Anna Valen whom he married May 7, 1919. After residing there for two years Mr. and Mrs. Krogen moved to Driscoll, where they have made their home since, both being employed at the E. J. Anderson store of general merchandise. During his years of residence there he had made friends with the entire community.

Burial services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock followed by a longer service of the city hall immediately after. Rev. Victor Bartling and Rev. L. G. Monson of Bismarck, will conduct the funeral services. Interment will take place in the Lutheran cemetery. He will be laid to rest beside his mother who passed away eight years ago.

JOHNSON HITS HARDING PLAN

Against Membership in International Court

New York, Mar.—President Harding's proposal that the United States accept membership in the permanent court of international justice was assailed here last night by Senator Johnson, Republican of California, a leader of the senate "irreconcilables" toward membership in the League of Nations.

Speaking before the Bronx board of trade, the California senator declared the demand for American participation in European affairs was based on no logical foundation, but emanated from "a befoored international intellectuality or a hysterical, unbridled imagination."

"Still the cry continues, the propaganda persists, for our entry into Europe," said Senator Johnson. "It takes on one form and then a totally different one, and has run the gamut of possible international organizations. Its advocates appeal in turn with equal fervor to our altruism and our cupidity."

With the Schneider murder case, in which P. D. LABOR DINES WITH KING

British Monarch Breaks Bread
at Lady Astor's House

London, Mar. 8.—The king and queen for the first time in their lives broke bread with the labor members of parliament tonight in the home of one of their subjects. The occasion was a dinner given by Viscount and Lady Astor, at which their majesties met among others James Henry Thomas, general secretary of the national union of railway men, John Robert Clynes, president of the national union of general workers and former labor leader in the house and Philip Snowden, and their wives.

Labor came in silken knee breeches, which was jocosely described as a concession and there also were present those who wear the cherished garb—Balfour, Salisbury and Grey of Falloden.

The affair, unique in British social history, was arranged as much to permit the king and queen to meet in social intercourse with the laborites as to allow the laborites to come into social contact with their rulers.

AG. COLLEGE STUDENTS WIN MANY HONORS

Growing Leadership of Young People Manifest in Past Year's Record

JUDGING TEAM RECORDS

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—North Dakota has reason to be proud of its supremacy among the states in the production of spring wheat, rye, and corn, but students at the North Dakota Agricultural college are pointing to a growing leadership of its young people as manifested in records made during the past year in student achievements and a consequent recognition in other states of these facts.

The Bison debating team of two students, Snorri Thorfinnson, Moun- and, and Jonas Sturlaugson, Svold, returned from a debating tour in January with four successive victories against the University of Maine, Connecticut Agricultural college, Massachusetts Aggies, and New Hampshire Aggies, successful no-decision debates with Penn State college and the Michigan Aggies, and no defeats.

Foremost among the records by students in the School of Agriculture is the victory of the Bison livestock judging team which won first place at the National Dairy show, October at St. Paul in competition with teams representing 19 other states. The team coached by J. R. Dice of the college staff, consisted of Bert Kirkirk, Fargo; Harper Brush, Lis- and, and Overt Skrei, Fargo.

First place in judging Percheron horses was won by the N. D. Agricultural college team which competed at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, December 2.

Enrollment Increased

Enrollment figures of the college considered a further indication of rising interest on the part of North Dakota's young people. Registration has increased 50 per cent in the collegiate department during the last year, and 75 per cent during the last two-year period. Following registration for the winter term at the agricultural college, the total enrollment in all courses reached, 481.

The School of Engineering installed the largest radio outfit this winter between the Twin Cities and the west, with which news reports, concerts, weather reports, and other programs are broadcasted under the direction of Dean E. S. Keene, and E. Hamilton, student operator.

Athletics as an outside activity of students took an upward climb this year when the football team completed its season with six victories, two defeats, and 216 points scored by the Bisons against 27 opponents by forward passes only. No team scored on the Aggies through the line by straight football. The basketball team with 20 games to be played with the University of North Dakota has won 14 games and lost three, placing them high in the ranks of the Northwest Intercollegiate conference. Optimism regarding the two final games is based on the 30 to 15 victory over the university five on February 23, following a victory by the university the previous day of 23 to 10.

Boys and Girls Clubs

Outstanding work by boys' and girls' club members of North Dakota under the direction of the extension division of the Agricultural college includes the following records during the past eighteen months: First place for a club team representing North Dakota in agricultural demonstrations at the Inter-state fair at Sioux City, Iowa; first place in competition with teams from 16 states in 1921; first honors by North Dakota's club team at the National Dairy show of 1921 at St. Paul; first place by the livestock judging team representing North Dakota's club members at the Inter-state fair at Sioux City, Iowa, last fall in competition with teams from nine other states; and six prizes out of ten, including first and third, in a girls' home economics club contest conducted among teams of 10 Northwest states by a national glass-ware company.

FLAT RATE TO HELP OWNERS

Motorists Find Dealers Making Sincere Effort to Hold Their Good Will

Automobile manufacturers and dealers are rapidly learning how important it is to satisfy car owners with service of proper character at a reasonable cost.

Following the example of Dodge Brothers, who were among the first to establish the flat rate system, many other organizations are planning or completing similar arrangements to increase service efficiency and reap the good will of car owners. In this connection it is interesting to note the manner in which Dodge Brothers attacked the problem, and the results accruing from their adoption of the flat rate system. The outline here given is from a statement issued by the factory:

"Our flat rate system was introduced over a year ago and is now used by the majority of Dodge Brothers dealers. They advise that this system has made it possible to practically eliminate friction between the car owner and the dealer on the subject of service charges. Advising the car owner of the cost of service work in advance, convinces him that many charges, which in the old days were regarded as excessive, were really justified. Few car owners have any idea of the amount of labor involved in making service repairs. In the installation of a very small amount of new material, it is quite possible that the necessary labor will cost a comparatively large sum of money.

"The car owner is certain to benefit through the installation of the flat rate system because there is now an incentive for the dealer to study short-cut methods and install labor saving devices. This will allow him to increase the volume of work passing through his service station, thus decreasing his overhead cost. The saving permits him to lessen his flat rate charges to car owners and at the same time make a fair business profit.

"With an efficient service station the dealer is in a position to meet the competition of inferior, inefficient repair shops, and construct a continuing contact with the car owner. This results in a better mutual understanding and eventually eliminates from the mind of his patrons, the idea now so prevalent, that service stations are places to be avoided because of unfair charges. The dealer has no desire to make his profit through exorbitant charges on a few service jobs which drift to him because the car owners know of no other place to go.

"Our experience with the flat rate plan is such that we look forward to the time in the near future when every Dodge Brothers car owner will patronize a Dodge Brothers Approved Service Station operated by one of our dealers. In such service stations they will be sure of receiving prompt, courteous, economical and efficient service. Through efficiency in the operation of the service station, brought about by the flat rate method, the car owner will obtain lower prices than can be obtained in unapproved, unsupervised, independent service stations."

That he will not waggle his head and say,

"No spik de English," and turn away,

But will smile and answer you, old or young,

In the tangy words of your native tongue.

It makes a stranger feel less forlorn

To chatter awhile with the native born.

South of the Mason and Dixon line

In the land of waffles and southern pine.

They mostly spring from the self-same sod

That their dads and their dads' grand-daddies trod,

And I may be narrow and due for scorn,

But I sure am strong for the Native Born!

Old King Tut Leaps Into Fame

The man of the hour is undoubtedly that late King of Egypt whose combined residence and tomb was lately opened to newspaper reporters and others. "The most remarkable man in the world to-day is King Tut-ankh-Amen," flatly announces one newspaper editor. "Almost overnight he has obtained a position of eminence surpassing that of the President of the United States, or the Premier of Great Britain, or Charlie Chaplin, or Jack Dempsey. . . . His leap into fame has been ever more spectacular than that of Dr. Coue."

By way of corroboration of this very generally held opinion of the popular King, dressmakers are bringing out Tut-ankh-Amen costumes, an enterprising silk manufacturer is advertising, with an interesting variation on the name, "Tu-tank-ha-men" silks (Reg. App. for U. S. Pat. Off.), a whole act of a New York musical comedy has been cut so that a new Tut-ankh-Amen episode can be put in, he said to be slated for the movies, poems galore have been written about him, Margot Asquith has appeared in London wearing a gown draped, at least in part, after the manner of the popular young King's kilts, while babies, suburbs, restaurants, apartment houses, and parlor cars are being named after him, and it is confidently predicted that there will soon be a King Tut cigar. The simple fact is the King is all the rage, in spite of his age of some three thousand four hundred years.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (March 10th), there are two live news-articles, graphically illustrated, which tell all about this famous King of Egypt and of the splendors in historic treasures which have been unearthed in his tomb. Other news-articles of great interest in this Number are:

Oh Western Land, my own dear land,

Oh Western land, my own home land,

I'll love thee evermore.

DEMURRER TO INDICTMENT IS HELD NOT GOOD

Judge Miller Overrules Objection in Jones Case; Proceeds to Trial

MAY BEGIN MONDAY

Although holding one count of the government's indictment of C. R. Jones, former assistant cashier of the City National Bank, to be defective, Judge Andrew Miller in federal court today held seven other counts to be good, and overruled the defendant's demurrer. The defense then filed a demand for a bill of particulars in the case, which was granted. District Attorney Hildreth said it would take sometime to complete the bill of particulars and the trial could not well proceed before Monday or Tuesday. Judge Miller held one count of an indictment against F. O. Hellstrom involving alleged lack of payment of government tax on receipts of the taxpayer Rex theater, to be defective and held one count of the indictment to be good. Trial of this case will take place at this term of court.

While getting ready for trial of the Jones case, District Attorney Hildreth moved to proceed with trial of James Root, charged with selling liquor to Indians at Fort Berthold reservation.

Exception to Rule
Judge Miller said that if the Jones indictment were sustained it must be sustained on the exception to the rule, in beginning his remarks on the demurrer presented yesterday afternoon. It has been a rule that indictments must descend into particulars, he said. The exception to the rule was where the person charged is a public official or officer of a corporation, or having supervision over some part of it where the person was not under the immediate supervision of the employer, and where it might not be possible to descend into particulars. The rule, he said, had been said by the United States Supreme Court. The Jones case was held to come within the exception to the rule and all counts of the indictment except one were held valid. The second count was held defective, the court stating there evidently was an omission of the most important part of the count in the typewriting.

Must File Bill
George Bangs, counsel for Jones, then requested a bill of particulars be filed stating in detail the charges of embezzlement of $17,866.89, which the government charges.

District Attorney Hildreth protested. Judge Miller said he could see no good reason why such a bill should not be furnished. District Attorney Hildreth, after consulting with a representative of the national banking department, said that it would take sometime to furnish this, and wanted the case to go over until Monday or Tuesday.

In his decision on the demurrers filed in the Hellstrom case, Judge Miller held the indictment sufficient in that it charged embezzlement in the second count and violation of the national revenue act, or a misdemeanor, in the first count. Since the national revenue act applied specifically to the case a charge of failing to turn in government tax money—this act prevailed. The second count was dismissed and the first held good. The government charge, he said, that the defendant was secretary of the company and had charge of the funds, must be proved on trial. The defendant denies that he was responsible or had control over the matters alleged.

STATE WINS TAX LAWSUIT

$10,000 Inheritance Tax on Trimble Estate Involved

The state is victor in the lawsuit instituted over the inheritance tax on the V. S. Trimble estate, decision being rendered by Probate Judge R. C. McFarland of Jamestown. Approximately $10,000 was involved in the suit, which was tried several months ago with Gordon V. Cox, tax department attorney, representing the state. The inheritance tax on the estate, about $30,000, was contested as to approximately one-third of the tax, the question being involved regarding apportionment as between North Dakota and Canadian provinces. The court held that intangible property, such as stocks, bonds and land contracts owned by the decedent had their taxable situs within North Dakota. The Trimble estate, appraised at about $1,200,000 is said to be the largest North Dakota estate on which inheritance tax has been paid.

HOW STATE LEGISLATURE SPENT YOUR DOLLAR SHOWN IN FIGURES

Over 50 percent of the money appropriated for the state general fund by the legislative session closed last week goes for educational purposes, according to an analysis of appropriations made in the state tax commissioner's office. Of the $7,480,185.58 appropriated for the general fund, 45.22 percent went for educational institutions, 9.90 percent for general educational purposes (state aid) and in addition the expense of maintaining the state educational department is included under the general head of administrative expenses.

In connection with the reserve indicated for farm potato stocks, this figure should not be confused with our January special potato figure on merchantable stocks nor the March 1 merchantable stocks report which will be issued at a later date. One of Most Beloved Women on Stage Appears at Auditorium

May Robson, perhaps the most beloved woman on the American stage is on her way to us with the most successful play she has had since "Aunt Mary" and will appear at the Auditorium March 19 in "Mother's Millions."

There is a big surprise in store for all of the Star's followers, for she is doing real heavy emotional work and combined with the wistful comedy, for which Miss Robson is noted, "Mother's Millions" is taking first honors.

"Harriet Green"—the role Miss Robson plays, is the most unique of any of her roles.

She rules the world as a financial leader but her heart is as big as her whole body and solid gold. "Mother's Millions" has a great moral.

The role of "Harriet Green" is not like any of her other roles but she is traveling on a new sphere—and is gaining more plaudits than ever before.

The comedy is so unexpected—and the pathetic scenes are so human and when she reaches her climax at the end of the second act—her emotional work is marvelous and you'll see Miss Robson as you never have before.

Miss Robson has a superlative cast and a production fitting the title.

AG. COLLEGE STUDENTS WIN MANY HONORS

Growing Leadership of Young People Manifest in Past Year's Record

JUDGING TEAM RECORDS

Fargo, N. D., March 10.—North Dakota has reason to be proud of its young men among the states in the production of spring wheat, rye, and corn, but students at the North Dakota Agricultural college are pointed to a growing leadership of its young people as manifested in recent achievements during the past year in student achievements and a consequent recognition in other states of their facts.

The Bison debating team of two students, Sauri Thorfinsson, Mountain, and Jonas Sturlaugsson, Svold, returned from a debating tour in January with four successive victories against the University of Maine, Connecticut Agricultural college, Massachusetts Aggies, and New Hampshire Aggies, successful no-doubt in the debate with Penn State college and the Michigan Aggies, and no defeats.

Foremost among the records by students in the School of Agriculture is the victory of the Bison livestock judging team which won first place at the National Dairy show, October 1st at St. Paul in competition with teams representing 15 other states. The team coached by J. R. Dien of the college staff, consisted of Burt McKirk, Fargo; Harper Brush, Lisbon, and Overt Skrei, Fargo.

First place in judging, Percheron horses was won by the N. D. Agricultural college team which competed at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, December 2.

Enrollment increase of the college has been considered a further indication of rising interest on the part of North Dakota's young people. Registration has increased 50 per cent in the collegiate department during the last year, and 75 per cent during the last two-year period. Following registration for the winter term at the agricultural college, the total enrollment in all courses reached, 481.

The School of Engineering installed the largest radio outfit this winter between the Twin Cities and the coast, with which news reports, concerts, weather reports and other programs are broadcasted under the direction of Dean E. S. Keene, and E. Hamilton, student operator.

Athletics as an outside activity of students took an upward climb this year when the football team completed its season with six victories, two defeats, and 216 points scored by the Bisons against 27 scored by opponents by forward passes only. No team scored on the Aggies through the line by straight football. The basketball team with two games to be played with the University of North Dakota has won 11 games and lost three, placing them high in the ranks of the Northwest Intercollegiate conference.

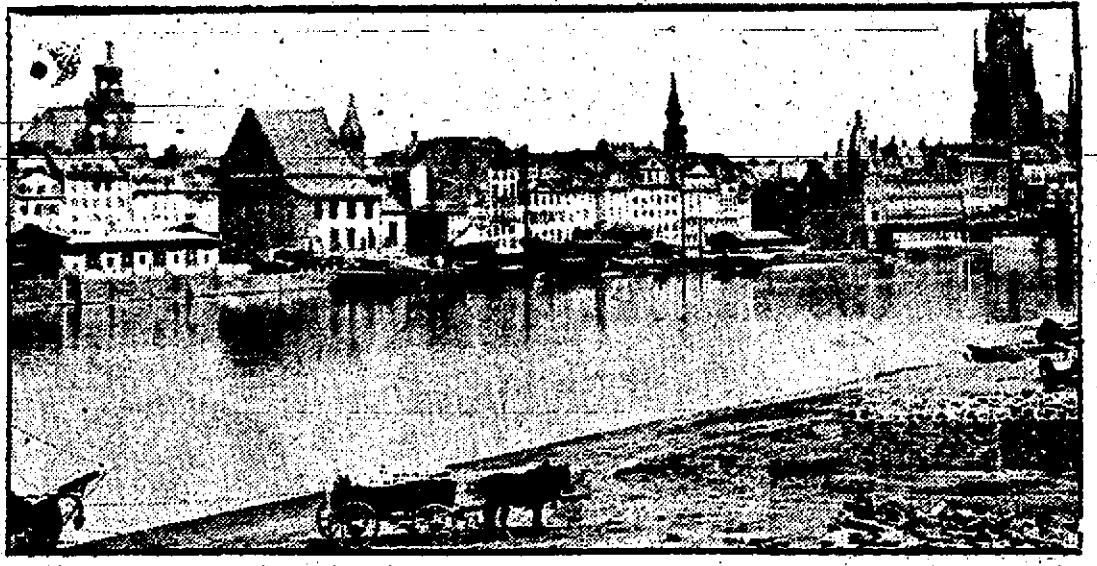

Optimism regarding the final games is based on the 30 to 15 victory over the university five on February 22, following a victory by the university the previous day of 23 to 10.

Increased spirit among students at the college, and creditable work in activities and accomplishments within the college itself is regarded as further good sign by student leaders pointing toward future progress.

Boys and Girls Clubs. Outstanding work by boys' and girls' club members of North Dakota under the direction of the extension division of the Agricultural college includes the following records during the past eighteen months: First place for a club team representing North Dakota in agricultural demonstrations at the Inter-state fair at Sioux City, Iowa, in competition with teams from 16 states; first place in the National Dairy show of 1921 at St. Paul; first place by the livestock judging team representing North Dakota's club members at the Inter-state fair at Sioux City, Iowa, last fall in competition with teams from nine other states; and six prizes out of ten, including first and third, in a girls' home economics club contest conducted among clubs of 10 Northwest states by a national glass-ware company.

"Watch us grow, and watch the actual results and achievements attending the growth of the Bison college," is the slogan of student organizations.

FLAT RATE TO HELP OWNERS

Motorists Find Dealers Making Sincere Effort to Hold Their Good Will

Automobile manufacturers and dealers are rapidly learning how important it is to satisfy car owners with service of proper character at a reasonable cost.

Following the example of Dodge Brothers, who were among the first to establish the flat rate system, many other organizations are planning or completing similar arrangements to increase service efficiency and keep the good will of car owners.

In this connection it is interesting to note the manner in which Dodge Brothers attacked the problem, and the results accruing from their adoption of the flat rate system. The outline here given is from a statement issued by the factory:

"Our flat rate system was started over a year ago and is now used by the majority of Dodge Brothers dealers. They advise that this system has made it possible to practically eliminate friction between the car owner and the dealer on the subject of service charges. Advising the car owner of the cost of service work in advance, convinces him that many charges, which in the old days were regarded as excessive, were really justified. Few car owners have any idea of the amount of labor involved in making service repairs. In the installation of a very small amount of new material, it is quite possible that the necessary labor will cost a comparatively large sum of money.

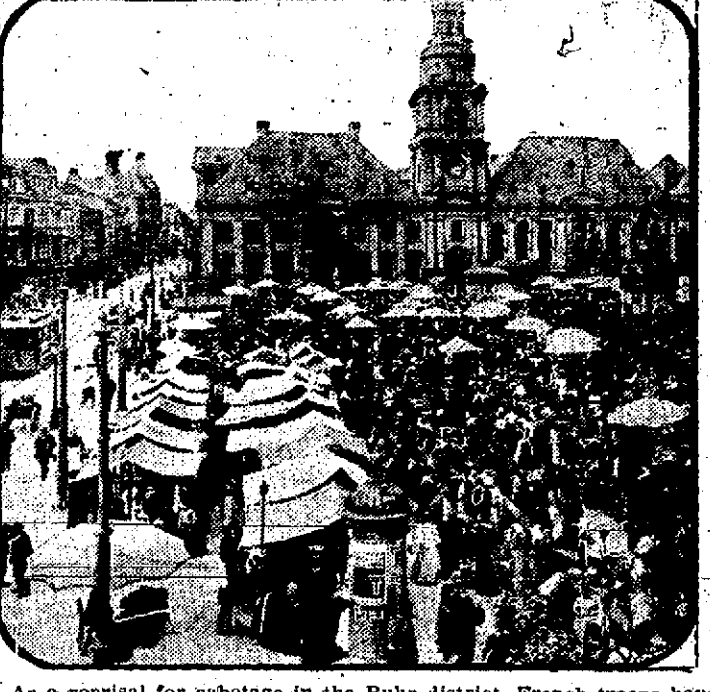

"The car owner is certain to benefit through the installation of the flat rate system because there is now an incentive for the dealer to study short-cut methods and install labor saving devices. This will allow him to increase the volume of work passing through his service station, thus decreasing his overhead cost. The saving permits him to lessen his flat rate charges to car owners and at the same time make a fair business profit.

"With an efficient service station the dealer is in a position to meet the competition of inferior, inefficient repair shops, and construct a continuing contact with the car owner. This results in a better mutual understanding and eventually eliminates from the mind of his patrons, the idea now so prevalent, that service stations are places to be avoided because of unfair charges. The dealer has no desire to make his profit through exorbitant charges on a few service jobs, which drive him because the car owners know of no other place to go.

"Our experience with the flat rate plan is such that we look forward to the time in the near future when every Dodge Brothers car owner will patronize a Dodge Brothers Approved Service Station operated by one of our dealers. In such service stations they will be sure of receiving prompt, courteous, economical and efficient service. Through efficiency in the operation of the service station, brought about by the flat rate method, the car owner will obtain lower prices than can be obtained in unapproved, unsupervised, independent service stations."

FELT HATS

One of the smartest shops on Fifth avenue is showing felt hats entirely for spring. They are trimmed with fur flowers, ribbon bows, and colorful fruits. For the most part they are small cloche-shapes.

NATIVE BORN. Spartansburg, S. C.

Away down here in the land of cotton The roads at times are a trifle rotten, And some of the villages might be bettered And lots of the people are quite unlettered. And their clothes, at seasons, are badly worn. But the folks, God Bless 'em, are Native Born! Now I haven't a kick at the foreign strain That's helped to settle our broad domain, But nevertheless it's here confessed I like American natives best; I know their feelings, as they know mine. For we all are built on the same design. It's nice to know, when you chance to greet A fellow citizen on the street, That he will not waggle his head and say, 'No spik de English,' and turn away. But will smile and answer you, old or young. In the tangy words of your native tongue. It makes a stranger feel less forlorn To chatter awhile with the native born. South of the Mason and Dixon line In the land of waffles and southern pine. They mostly spring from the self-same sod That their dads and their dad's grand-daddies trod, And I may be narrow and due for scorn, But I sure am strong for the Native Born! —BERTON BRALEY. ORGANDIE FROCKS

Very sheer white organdie, embroidered in peasant colors and designs, is very popular for collars and cuffs for the new spring frocks. Entire frocks of embroidered organdie surely will grow in popularity as the winter wanes.

Old King Tut Leaps Into Fame

The man of the hour is undoubtedly that late King of Egypt whose combined residence and tomb was lately opened to newspaper reporters and others. "The most remarkable man in the world to-day is King Tut-ankh-Amen," flatly announces one newspaper editor. "Almost overnight he has obtained a position of eminence surpassing that of the President of the United States, or the Premier of Great Britain, or Charlie Chaplin, or Jack Dempsey. His leap into fame has been ever more spectacular than that of Dr. Coue."

By way of corroboration of this very generally held opinion of the popular King, dressmakers are bringing out Tut-ankh-Amen costumes, an enterprising silk manufacturer is advertising, with an interesting variation on the name, "Tu-tank-ha-men" silks (Reg. App. for U. S. Pat. Off.), a whole act of a New York musical comedy has been cut so that a new Tut-ankh-Amen episode can be put in, he said to be slated for the movies, poems galore have been written about him, Margot Asquith has appeared in London wearing a gown draped, at least in part, after the manner of the popular young King's kilts, while babies, suburbs, restaurants, apartment houses, and parlor cars are being named after him, and it is confidently predicted that there will soon be a King Tut cigar. The simple fact is the King is all the rage, in spite of his age of some three thousand four hundred years.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (March 10th), there are two live news-articles, graphically illustrated, which tell all about this famous King of Egypt and of the splendors in historic treasures which have been unearthed in his tomb. Other news-articles of great interest in this Number are:

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

RESOLUTION GETS RESULTS

It is not surprising that Governor Hardee of Florida was quick to take offense at the action of the North Dakota legislature in passing a resolution asking an investigation of the death of Martin Tabert, Cavalier county youth who is said to have died from a flogging received in a Florida prison camp. The Governor of our southernmost state was particularly disturbed, it appeared, by the publicity attending the passage of the resolution which in itself shows that the North Dakota people demanding justice for Tabert's slayers took the proper course in getting results. No state in the union could afford to be branded with the stigma of legalizing virtual slavery and Florida in particular can ill afford it when she is straining every effort to attract northern tourists and northern capital. The resolution of the North Dakota legislature may have a far-reaching and desired effect.

The language of the resolution of the legislature, however, was such that it ought to be understood by Governor Hardee and the majority of Florida people that North Dakotans do not have any idea that Florida is infested with such camps or that the life of every unfortunate youth such as Martin Tabert is endangered when he is temporarily stranded in that state. The resolution itself, as was pointed out by Governor Nestos in reply, was intended also by the North Dakota senate to aid those in Florida who have been waging a fight for the abolition of the cruel system of contracting prisoners to work in swamp lumber camps. Governor Hardee points out that Florida has abolished the system with its state prisoners, but it is unfortunate he felt called upon to excuse the few counties in that state who still are practicing the system. For the Florida executive has been one of the leaders in the fight against the system in his state.

Humaneness in dealing with prisoners does not mean leniency. There is much to commend in the system in vogue in southern states of working prisoners on road gangs. There is no obligation upon the state to shelter criminals in comfort and security from public gaze behind brick walls. There is every reason why the state should require prisoners to labor for the cost of their imprisonment. But there is no practice so reprehensible in a state as to require its prisoners to labor beyond its control under contract with mercenary individuals or corporations, and North Dakotans can feel with confidence that public sentiment in Florida will rebel against the cruel means under which Martin Tabert was sent to his death.

RICH

The widow of F. W. Woolworth had an income last year of $696,652. Most of it came from the 5-and-10-cent stores. This is revealed in a New York count—also the fact that income tax took $251,597.

While this left Mrs. Woolworth $445,055 "to the good," the size of her income tax shows that being rich is not quite as attractive as it used to be. Also that the wealthy are digging down in their pockets to help pay for the war, the same as the family of small income which indirectly pays taxes when it buys things.

UNDERTAKERS

A protest, against removing King Tut's mummy from its tomb, is voted indignantly by New York undertakers. Frank E. Campbell, their president, comments: "It is not pleasant to contemplate the prospect of having the bodies of Washington and Lincoln dug up after a couple of hundred or a thousand years and placed on exhibition in a museum."

Now that the scientific grave robbers have looted Tut's tomb, let his body rest in peace. Only the morbid care to see it. People curious to see a mummy have a lot in common with the morons who delight in frequenting modern morgues when they haven't identification of the corpses as their motive.

Fred Stone, world's greatest clown, "got religion" while snow-bound in a sleeping car in the Dakotas. He pledges a tenth of his income for Christian work, as a result of his Bible reading. The church will profit highly, for Stone's income is said to be around $125,000 a year.

The person who hasn't read the Bible from cover to cover has missed one of the finest things in life, including the greatest literary work ever written. When you can't find comfort anywhere else, you'll find it in the Good Book. Even those not religiously inclined will enjoy the romance and adventures woven into the Bible. Have you read it?

"PATRIOTS"

Hindenburg addressing a convention of German cannon fodder says: "If necessary we will fight even until the last flag is torn to pieces and the last sword blade shattered. It is better to perish in honor than to live in disgrace."

His guileless audience cheered, though deep in their hearts they knew that Hindy would keep out of bullet range, the same as he did in the World-War. The ones who talk the most about fighting, the ones who rush their country into war, rarely show up on the list of killed or wounded. In Germany—or America.

RAG-CHEWING

An appropriation, to pay for folding 26 million copies of speeches and pamphlets, is one of the interesting items of the national government's budget estimate for the next fiscal year. Ten million copies will be issued by the Senate, rest by the House.

Everything seems subject to change in our civilization—except rag-chewing by Congress. People who talk a lot never have time for much actual doing. To speed things up in Washington, it might be a good idea to elect dumb men to Congress. What? Oh, not that kind of dumb.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

SENATOR BROOKHART AS AN AID TO WALL STREET

That the bill recently introduced in Congress by Senator Brookhart of Iowa would, on the Senator's own theory, "transfer from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to make a valuation of the railway" is the view expressed by the Railway Age in an editorial in its current issue. "For a man who avows that he is attacking Wall Street," the Railway Age adds, "the Senator is the kindest man to Wall Street that we ever heard of."

The Railway Age reaches its somewhat surprising conclusion by the following reasoning:

"In introducing his bill Senator Brookhart said: 'My bill is designed to break the hold of Wall Street on the railroads.' Wall Street could have a 'hold' on the railroads only through their securities. "Senator Brookhart had frequently asserted that the total market value of railway securities is 120, when the original tentative valuation was made by the Interstate Commerce commission, was only twelve billion dollars, or about seven billion dollars less than the tentative valuation. We had assumed, therefore, that when he introduced his bill it would specifically require that the valuation should be reduced by exactly seven billion dollars."

"Instead, it merely provides that the valuation shall be continuously based upon the value of the securities. The best available measure of the market value of railway securities is the prices for which they are bought and sold on the New York Stock Exchange. On the Senator's own theory, the securities are controlled by Wall Street. Naturally, Wall Street wants a high valuation of the railroads. On the Senator's own theory Wall Street could boost the prices, and obviously if it could do so it would do so. The higher the prices were advanced, the more the valuation would have to be increased. The sky would be the limit."

"The method of evaluating the railroads has the merit of simplicity. Under the law as it now stands, the Interstate Commerce Commission has been laboring for about nine years to make an inventory of all the physical properties of the railroads—land, ties, rails, track bolts, ballast, yards stations, shops, cars and locomotives—and to estimate their probable cost of reproduction, less depreciation. Under Mr. Brookhart's bill, the Commission would be relieved of all this onerous labor. First, it would have to make an estimate of the value of all the outstanding securities based upon their market prices at the time the law went into effect or soon thereafter. After having done that, all it would have to do to keep the valuation up to date would be to put a stock ticker in its office. A clerk would sit at a desk by the ticker with a lead pencil, and note every change in market price that the ticker recorded. Every time the clerk reported a change in market quotations, an entirely new valuation would be made."

"While this method of keeping the valuation up to date would be simple, it would not be without its difficulties and embarrassments. It is probable that even in spite of 'Wall Street control' the prices of securities would undergo from month to month and year to year wide fluctuations. The consequent large changes in the valuation would make necessary corresponding changes in railway rates. Every time there was a bull market on the stock exchange railway rates would have to be advanced and every time there was a bear market they would have to be reduced. But, of course, if, as Senator Brookhart in effect proposes, the power to make a valuation of the railroads is to be transferred from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street, the public will have to bear such inconveniences as will result."

"When the senator's companion introduces a bill which would have the effect, as we have shown it would have, of transferring from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to put a valuation upon the railroads, we deem it only fair to warn his constituents to keep an eye on him. The Railway Age believes, however, that he is sincerely anxious to secure the adoption of legislation which would confiscate a large part of the value of the railroads, and throw most of them into bankruptcy. These are, of course, very worthy objects but if Mr. Brookhart is to accomplish them he must change his bill. He cannot reasonably hope to accomplish them by transferring from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to make the valuation of railroads." Railway Age

ST. PAUL AT SIXTY-NINE

Ten men and women, who lived in St. Paul in 1854, were guests of honor at the recent celebration of that city's sixty-ninth birthday as an incorporated city. In this brief span of time it has developed from a village of 4,716 to a metropolitan center. Had its quaint Indian name been retained, St. Paul would today be known as Innijska, an appellation derived from the white bluffs of the river. Four years earlier than its incorporation St. Paul was designated the Capital of the Territory of Minnesota and it has remained the Capital to this day.

Students of municipal affairs find in the parallel growth of Minneapolis and St. Paul an interesting contrast in the shaping forces of city development. St. Anthony Falls gave Minneapolis an industrial bias that has characterized it through the years. St. Paul's growth has been due largely to trade, transportation and political factors. The old rivalry between them has largely passed and they are content to be known as the Twin Cities. In

The bargain-hunting instinct is supposed to be more or less a feminine possession, but the most incorrigible bargain-hunter I ever heard of was a newspaper correspondent.

He was sent to Berlin some time after the war, when the mark was falling rapidly, and he figured that there ought to be a lot of stuff he could pick up cheaply.

So he went out in search of bargains and returned to the bar of the Adlon Hotel, where the other correspondents were grouped, late one afternoon.

"Fellows," he cried, excitedly, "I've just run across the most remarkable bargain you ever heard of. What do you think of this? I know where you can get a barrel of tatooing ink for $12."

MICHAEL SAYERS, noted criminal

and

SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saved him

by shooting dead the officer sent to arrest him. Janet becomes Sayers' wife and accomplice. In the Leeds bank robbery, Michael

(known to Greyes as "Stanfield") barely escapes and has to flee the country.

Sayers plots with another well-known criminal, Paul Gont, to ruin

the government. Philippe Lutard, Gont sends for Janet to assist them. Sir Norman is hired by the government to protect Lutard

and promises to do all in his power to keep the leader from harm. Greyes

meets Janet on the street and takes her to luncheon.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Sir Norman Talks

I saw her luggage through the customs, for which, as she knew me, she was grateful. I offered her a seat in the car which had been sent for me, but she shook her head.

"I am going to the Gare d'Est,"

she said.

"Where you will take a fresh cab and drive to the address which you do not intend me to hear," I remarked. "You need not go out of your way. I will give you another parole. I will make no effort to discover your address, so you can take your taxi and drive straight there.

I shall be at the Hotel Maurice. If you have an hour to spare, we will drive in the Bois tomorrow."

For the next few days I was immersed in the complications of the business which had brought me to Paris. To my surprise, Janet called for me at the hotel and we took our drive in the Bois. It was easy to realize that, whatever the business which had brought her to Paris may have been, it was of a disturbing nature. She was nervous and ill at ease, looking around all the time as though she was afraid of being observed. Somehow, I gathered when we parted that she was obsessed by some new fear, some underlying dread of circumstances, of which,

however, she gave me no inkling.

At the end of the third day of my stay a little conference was held in my salon between Guy Ennison—

who had worked in the English secret-service during the war, and whose headquarters had been in Paris—myself and Monsieur Destin, an ex-chief of the police, now a member of Lutard's government.

The latter was a short and corpulent

little Frenchman, with black mustache and imperious vivid black eyes and a most vicious manner.

"Sir Norman Greyes," he said,

grasping my hand, "you are welcome. If you can help us to save our chief, you are more than welcome.

He is in danger—that I am assured."

Much of the rest of his speech was irrelevant. The gist of the matter, however, was contained in his concluding sentences.

"They will seek to strike through his one weakness—his sentimentality, his excessive good-nature. Philippe Lutard has always been a lover of women, a kindly and a generous lover. He can resist no appeal to his sympathies; and our French public—you know, perhaps, how strange they are. Whatever our own private lives may be, we tolerate no

indiscretions from our great men. We glorify and sanctify them; we place them on a pedestal; and if they fall, we depose them from our hearts. All nations have their peculiar form of hypocrisy. That is ours. Lutard's daily life is being annihilated at the present moment.

hour by hour."

"By the police," I asked.

"No! By the agents of a very dangerous gang of criminals, whose

chief we believe to be in league

with the other side."

"Why not give warning to Monsieur Lutard?"

"That has been done. He is haughmight suffer. In a month or two—however, all that will be changed—we shall have entered upon a new era—and for these few months I choose to take my risk. I will not submit to espionage."

Nevertheless for the next three days I cast away my name and resorted to the meanest walks of my profession. I shadowed the great French statesman, from the moment when he rose, until nightfall. There was a young girl, very beautiful, with great dark eyes and an appealing face, who stopped him one night and walked away with him. She was limping, and she pointed continually to her foot. Lutard called the flaccid which she indicated. She leaned her fingers upon her arm. I was close enough to see the pressure of them, to note the subtlety of her upward glance, to hear her hand her to the cab. I heard her pleading words. She was lonely. If monsieur would drive with her a little way! But Lutard shook his head gravely. He paid the taxi man a fare which surprised him, lifted his hat courteously and walked away. I saw the change in the girl's face as he disappeared. That was just one of his escapes.

We had a more exciting few minutes one night when he insisted upon walking home from the Quai d'Orsay. I saw the four dark, silent figures gliding behind him, two of them in front of him and two behind, and I saw the waiting motor car at the corner of the street. Prudence led me to anticipate their action, whatever it might be. When they heard the spit of bullets against the wall, they took to their heels and ran, to thegendarme who came hurrying up I had only to show my badge of authority, and he procured for us at once a taxi cab. Lutard, convinced now that his enemies were not serious, yielded to my first proposition. I was installed in his house as majordomo.

We had three or four days of absolute quietude. Then the moment which we had been expecting, arrived. It was about six o'clock in the evening, and I was seated in Monsieur Lutard's study, copying some letters at a desk and copying as his secretary. A servant brought in a note, which the minister read hastily and passed to me. It was written on British Foreign office notepaper and signed by a very important personage. The gist of it was contained in these lines:

"The bearer can be altogether trusted. He brings you a verbal message of great importance. You will further our mutual interest if you give it your most serious consideration."

It was a mere chance that led me to retire to what Lutard was pleased to call my spy-hole. Notwithstanding my disguise, it was perhaps as well that I did so, for to my amazement it was Janet who was presently ushered in. Monsieur Lutard rose to his feet in some surprise.

"You are the bearer of this letter, madame?" he queried.

"In a sense I am not," she replied, taking the chair to which he pointed and handing him the letter. "It is my husband who should have come. He would have waited upon you and brought the letter and message to which this note refers, but he was attacked last night by an old complaint of his—sciatica—and he is absolutely unable to move. He asked me to hasten to you, and to beg that under the circumstances you would do him the honor to come to the hotel. He is ashamed to have to ask you, but the doctor who is with him now absolutely forbids him to stand up. I have here a certificate."

"I will come without delay, madame," Lutard promised, waving away the half-sheet of notepaper which she had tendered.

"I came in a taxi cab—it is waiting," she continued. "You doubtless would prefer your own car, but it is no matter," he answered. "At which hotel do you stay?"

"The Hotel Napoleon, in the Rue Tranchard," she replied.

"The minister started. I too received a letter, for the district was the most notorious in Paris."

"My dear madame," he protested, "the neighborhood of the Rue Tranchard is certainly not a place for you and—"

"That is what distressed my husband so much in having to ask you to go to him," she interrupted. "It was the particular desire of the person on whose behalf he has come, that his presence in Paris should not be known, and my husband deliberately chose this hotel, where he sometimes stayed when engaged on secret-service work during the war. He desired me to say that if you preferred not to risk being seen in such a locality, he would endeavor to procure an ambulance car from the hospital and come here."

"Such a thing would be unheard of," Lutard protested. "I will go with you, of course."

"Well," my temporary chief asked, looking across at me.

"The moment has arrived," I answered.

"You suggest that the woman is an impostor?" he exclaimed.

"She is the wife of a well-known English criminal," I declared. "Her story was plausible but very improbable. What about the letter she brought?"

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAYES HAMILTON TO HER PROSPECTIVE SON-IN-LAW JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

MY DEAR BOY:

I feel that I know you well enough to tell you this, my dear John, because my little girl has done nothing but talk of you since she came home.

I confess that at first I was rather disappointed as well as doubtful as to her marriage with you. There are so many young men here in her own town that both her father and I have known ever since they were children who, it seemed to me, would make a most suitable match.

Besides, I hated to feel that when Leslie married she would go to another city; but of course I have lived long enough to know that when love speaks, we fathers and mothers must step aside.

I need not tell you, my dear John, that my daughter Leslie is one of the sweetest girls in all the world. Of course, you must realize that, even though she has never had any great responsibilities, I have always been one of those old-fashioned mothers that think that a girl's youth should be given to good times and happiness, if possible. After marriage, responsibilities come quickly enough.

Leslie's father tells me that he has heard very good reports of you from some of his friends. In his business man's colloquialism he said "That boy is a hustler and unless he gets shunted on the wrong track, I think he will make Leslie a good husband."

I shall be very much pleased to meet your mother, my dear John. Of course she will come on for the wedding which, if it is agreeable to you, we have set for Saturday, the 22nd of next month. That will give us just six weeks to make the preparations.

I don't know whether you know it, but Leslie's father and I ran away to be married, and I have always had a little sorrowing pang to think that the most important event of my life was not the occasion of more ceremony.

I want both my daughters to remember their wedding day not only with great joy, but with great pride. Leslie has held in the hearts of the younger set in Sharon a unique place ever since her coming out party. I think she has been the most popular in the town. You should know, John, that you have taken her away from three or four of the most eligible and wealthy in all Pennsylvania; consequently, I want all her friends to realize that we are giving her to you gladly and proudly, and I want to make her wedding an even in the annals of Sharon's society.

We have decided that the wedding shall take place at St. James with full choir. There will be six or eight bridesmaids. You, of course, will choose your best man and any of the others that you may wish to be present. The others will be supplied from among Leslie's youthful admirers.

The wedding will take place at high noon. The bishop has kindly consented to officiate, assisted by the rector and assistant rector of St. James. Of course, your mother and any others of your friends will be present and we will see that they are entertained at our home, the County Club, and Sharon's best hotel, for at least a week before the wedding day, as there will be many parties given for you both.

You and Leslie will arrange about wedding trips, or any other purely personal details.

Yesterday, at a luncheon given to Leslie's friends, I made the announcement of your engagement. I am sending you a clipping from the paper. I shall keep you informed from time to time of all our arrangements, and if you have any suggestions to make, I hope you will do so.

Sincerely yours,

ALICE CARTON HAMILTON.

Clipping From the Sharon Dispatch

Yesterday afternoon at one of the smartest luncheons of the season, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grayes Hamilton announced the engagement of their daughter Leslie to Mr. John Alden Prescott of Allany, New York. Mr. Prescott comes from one of the oldest of Puritan families, his mother being a direct descendant of John Alden, and is a prominent young business man in the eastern city.

The wedding will take place on the 22nd of next month, and will probably be one of the most splendid nuptial gatherings that has ever taken place in Sharon, as Miss Leslie Hamilton has been one of the belles of the city ever since she returned from school two years ago. The bride will be preceded to the altar by eight of the most beautiful girls in society as bridesmaids. Four little daughters of Sharon's smartest society women will strew flowers before her. Everyone is looking forward to this event.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE.

The feature at the Eltinge theatre for Monday is "Silas Marner" from the story by George Eliot. Many will remember the story of a miser who worshipped his gold, hoarded through the years, then sank to the depths of desolation and despair when it was stolen from him, and taught his crowning happiness through his care for a baby left motherless at his door. Crawford Kent plays Silas Marner, while Marguerite Courtot, George Fulett and others are in the cast.

For Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the Eltinge has a double attraction in a Paramount picture from the Willard Mack play, "Kick In," featuring Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and May MacAvoy. The other feature on the program is Dr. Coue himself in the only picture he has made. Dr. Coue has been the most prominent figure before the public the last few weeks, and has made this picture demonstrating his doctrine of "Every Day in Every Way, I'm Getting Better and Better."

CAPITAL.

Those who never have seen a great forest on fire, and who read casually each autumn of the devastating of great areas of timber, have small conception of the awful grandeur of the scene, or the magnitude of the destruction. And few realize the acts of heroism that enter into the daily lives of those who guard the nation's standing timber.

Director David Smith, who is responsible for Vitaphone's great production, "The Ninety and Nine," has given to the screen and the public a worthwhile portrayal. The scenes in the picture that are concerned in the action of the story were made in the Sawtooth Range of Southern California, near Mt. San Jacinto. A curious coincidence the scenes were made during the actual fighting of a monster fire that broke out on Mount Talkatch, during the work of the Vitaphone Company on location. In fact Director Smith and his company volunteered as fire fighters in a heart breaking effort to check the flames, in which they were successful.

The closeups, therefore, in this great spectacle are striking. One can almost smell the smoke, and hear the uncanny roar of flames and wind that accompany a big forest fire. This picture will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol theatre.

Why a Checking Account?

The use of the bank check in commercial transactions has grown tremendously and is now probably the most perfect medium of exchange known to finance.

The advantages of a check are many. It is safe to carry since it is a negotiable instrument requiring an endorsement before it can be cashed and if lost its payment can be stopped by notice. It is recognizable and can be traced from the time it is issued until it is cancelled at the bank which is not true of the various forms of money, a ten dollar bill for example. It is elastic in that the check may be issued for the exact amount for which the maker is making payment and when it is finally returned to him it is an indisputable evidence of payment.

Start a checking account in our commercial department and secure for yourself the advantages that accrue from the ownership of such an account.

We have decided that the wedding shall take place at St. James with full choir. There will be six or eight bridesmaids. You, of course, will choose your best man and any of the ushers that you may wish to be present. The others will be supplied from among Leslie's youthful admirers.

The wedding will take place at high noon. The bishop has kindly consented to officiate, assisted by the rector and assistant rector of St. James. Of course, your mother and any others of your friends will be present and we will see that they are entertained at our home, the County Club, and Sharon's best hotel, for at least a week before the wedding day, as they will be many parties. I shall keep you informed from time to time of all our arrangements, and if you have any suggestions to make, I hope you will do so.

Sincerely yours,
ALICE CARTON HAMILTON.

Clipping From the Sharon Despatch.
Yesterday afternoon at one of the smartest luncheons of the season, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Graves Hamilton announced the engagement of their daughter Leslie to Mr. John Alden Prescott of Albany, New York. Mr. Prescott comes from one of the oldest of Puritan families, his mother being a lineal descendant of John Alden, and is a prominent young business man in the eastern city.

The wedding will take place on the 22nd of next month, and will probably be one of the most splendid nuptial gatherings that has ever taken place in Sharon, as Miss Leslie Hamilton has been one of the belles of the city ever since she returned from school two years ago. The bride will be preceded to the altar by eight of the most beautiful girls in society as bridesmaids. Four little daughters of Sharon's smartest society women will strew flowers before her. Everyone is looking forward to this event.

AT THE MOVIES.
THE ELTINGE.
The feature at the Eltinge theater for Monday is "Silas Marner" from the story by George Eliot. Many who worshipped his gold, horded through the years, then sank to the depths of desolation and despair when it was stolen from him, and reached his crowning happiness through his care for a baby left motherless at his door. Crawford Kent plays Silas Marner, while Marguerite Courtet, George Falcott and others are in the cast.

For Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the Eltinge has a double attraction in a Paramount picture from the Willard Mack play, "Kick In," featuring Betty Compson, Bert Lytell and May MacAvoy. The other feature on the program is Dr. Coue himself in the only picture he has made. Dr. Coue has been the most prominent figure before the public the last few weeks and has made this picture demonstrating his doctrine of "Every Day in Every Way, I'm Getting Better and Better."

daily lives of those who guard the nation's standing timber.

Director David Smith, who is responsible for Vitagraph's great production, "The Ninety and Nine," has given to the screen and the public a worthwhile portrayal. The scenes in the picture that are concerned in the action of the story were made in the Sawtooth Range of Southern California, near Mt. San Jacinto. It is a curious coincidence the scenes were made during the actual fighting of a monster fire that broke out on Mount Talkewich, during the work of the Vitagraph Company on location. In fact Director Smith and his company volunteered as fire fighters in a heart breaking effort to check the flames, in which they were successful.

The closeups, therefore, in this great spectacle are striking. One can almost smell the smoke, and hear the uncanny roar of flames and wind that accompany a big forest fire. This picture will be shown Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol theater.

Why a Checking Account?

The use of the bank check in commercial transactions has grown tremendously and is now probably the most perfect medium of exchange known to finance.

The advantages of a check are many. It is safe to carry since it is a negotiable instrument requiring an endorsement before it can be cashed and if lost its payment can be stopped by notice. It is recognizable and can be traced from the time it is issued until it is cancelled at the bank which is not true of the various forms of money, a ten dollar bill for example. It is elastic in that the check may be issued for the exact amount for which the maker is making payment and when it is finally returned to him it is an indisputable evidence of payment.

Start a checking account in our commercial department and secure for yourself the advantages that accrue from the ownership of such an account.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

RESOLUTION GETS RESULTS

It is not surprising that Governor Hardee of Florida was quick to take offense at the action of the North Dakota legislature in passing a resolution asking an investigation of the death of Martin Tabert, Cavalier county youth who is said to have died from a flogging received in a Florida prison camp. The Governor of our southernmost state was particularly disturbed, it appeared, by the publicity attending the passage of the resolution which in itself shows that the North Dakota people demanding justice for Tabert's slayers took the proper course in getting results. No state in the union could afford to be branded with the stigma of legalizing virtual slavery and Florida in particular can ill afford it when she is straining every effort to attract northern tourists and northern capital. The resolution of the North Dakota legislature may have a far-reaching and desired effect.

The language of the resolution of the legislature, however, was such that it ought to be understood by Governor Hardee and the majority of Florida people that North Dakotans do not have any idea that Florida is infested with such camps of that the life of every unfortunate youth such as Martin Tabert is endangered when he is temporarily stranded in that state. The resolution itself, as was pointed out by Governor Nestos in reply, was intended also by the North Dakota senate to aid those in Florida who have been waging a fight for the abolition of the cruel system of contracting prisoners to work in swamp lumber camps. Governor Hardee points out that Florida has abolished the system with its state prisoners, but it is unfortunate he felt called upon to excuse the few counties in that state who still are practicing the system. For the Florida executive has been one of the leaders in the fight against the system in his state.

Humaneness in dealing with prisoners does not mean leniency. There is much to commend in the system in vogue in southern states of working prisoners on road gangs. There is no obligation upon the state to shelter criminals in comfort and security from public gaze behind brick walls. There is every reason why the state should require prisoners to labor for the cost of their imprisonment. But there is no practice so reprehensible in a state as to require its prisoners to labor beyond its control under contract with mercenary individuals or corporations, and North Dakotans can feel with confidence that public sentiment in Florida will rebel against the cruel means under which Martin Tabert was sent to his death.

RICH

The widow of F. W. Woolworth had an income last year of $696,652. Most of it came from the 5-and-10-cent stores. This is revealed in a New York count—also the fact that income tax took $251,597.

While this left Mrs. Woolworth $445,055 "to the good," the size of her income tax shows that being rich is not quite as attractive as it used to be. Also that the wealthy are digging down in their pockets to help pay for the war, the same as the family of small income which indirectly pays taxes when it buys things.

UNDERTAKERS

A protest, against removing King Tut's mummy from its tomb, is voted indignantly by New York undertakers. Frank E. Campbell, their president, comments: "It is not pleasant to contemplate the prospect of having the bodies of Washington and Lincoln dug up after a couple of hundred or a thousand years and placed on exhibition in a museum."

Now that the scientific grave robbers have looted Tut's tomb, let his body rest in peace. Only the morbid care to see it. People curious to see a mummy have a lot in common with the morons who delight in frequenting modern morgues when they haven't identification of the corpses as their motive.

Fred Stone, world's greatest clown, "got religion" while snow-bound in a sleeping car in the Dakotas. He pledges a tenth of his income for Christian work, as a result of his Bible reading. The church will profit highly, for Stone's income is said to be around $125,000 a year.

The person who hasn't read the Bible from cover to cover has missed one of the finest things in life, including the greatest literary work ever written. When you can't find comfort anywhere else, you'll find it in the Good Book. Even those not religiously inclined will enjoy the romance and adventures woven into the Bible. Have you read it?

"PATRIOTS"

Hindenburg addressing a convention of German cannon fodder says: "If necessary we will fight even until the last flag is torn to pieces and the last sword blade shattered. It is better to perish in honor than to live in disgrace."

His gullible audience cheered, though deep in their hearts they knew that Hindy would keep out of bullet range, the same as he did in the World War. The ones who talk the most about fighting, the ones who rush their country into war, rarely show up on the list of killed or wounded. In Germany—or America.

RAG-CHEWING

An appropriation, to pay for folding 26 million copies of speeches and pamphlets, is one of the interesting items of the national government's budget estimate for the next fiscal year. Ten million copies will be issued by the Senate, rest by the House.

Everything seems subject to change in our civilization—except rag-chewing by Congress. People who talk a lot never have time for much actual doing. To speed things up in Washington, it might be a good idea to elect dumb men to Congress. What? Oh, not that kind of dumb.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

SENATOR BROOKHART AS AN AID TO WALL STREET

That the bill recently introduced in Congress by Senator Brookhart of Iowa would, on the Senator's own theory, transfer from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to make a valuation of the railroad is the view expressed by the Railway Age in an editorial in its current issue. "For a man who avows that he is attacking Wall Street," the Railway Age adds, "the Senator is the kindest man to Wall Street that we ever heard of." The Railway Age reaches its somewhat surprising conclusion by the following reasoning:

"In introducing his bill, Senator Brookhart said: 'My bill is designed to break the hold of Wall Street on the railroads.' Wall Street could have a hold on the railroads only through their securities."

"Senator Brookhart had frequently asserted that the total market value of railway securities in 1929, when the original tentative valuation was made by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was only twelve billion dollars, or about seven billion dollars less than the tentative valuation. We had assumed, therefore, that when he introduced his bill it would specifically require that the valuation should be reduced by exactly seven billion dollars."

"Instead, it merely provides that the valuation shall be continuously based upon the value of the securities. The best available measure of the market value of railway securities is the prices for which they are bought and sold on the New York Stock Exchange. On the Senator's own theory, the securities are controlled by Wall Street. Naturally, Wall Street wants a high valuation of the railroads. On the Senator's own theory, Wall Street could control the price, and obviously it could do so it would do so. The higher the prices were advanced, the more the valuation would have to be increased. The sky would be the only limit."

"This method of evaluating the railroads has the merit of simplicity. Under the law as it now stands, the Interstate Commerce Commission has been laboring for about nine years to make an inventory of all the physical properties of the railroads—land, ties, rails, track bolts, ballast, yards, stations, shops, cars and locomotives and to estimate their probable cost of reproduction, less depreciation. Under Mr. Brookhart's bill, the Commission would be relieved of all this onerous labor. First, it would have to make an estimate of the value of all the outstanding securities based upon their market prices at the time the law went into effect or soon thereafter. After having done that, all it would have to do to keep the valuation up to date would be to put a stock ticker in its office. A clerk would sit at a desk by the ticker with a lead pencil, and note every change in market price that the ticker recorded. Every time the clerk reported a change in market quotations, an entirely new valuation would be made."

"While this method of keeping the valuation up to date would be simple, it would not be without its difficulties and embarrassments. It is probable that even in spite of 'Wall Street control' the prices of securities would undergo from month to month and year to year wide fluctuations. The consequent large changes in the valuation would make necessary corresponding changes in railway rates. Every time there was a bull market on the stock exchange railway rates would have to be advanced and every time there was a bear market they would have to be reduced. But, of course, if, as Senator Brookhart in effect proposes, the power to make a valuation of the railroads is to be transferred from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street, the public will have to bear such inconvenient changes as will result."

"While the Senator's proposal introduces a bill which would have the effect, as we have shown it would have, of transferring from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to put a valuation upon the railroads, we deem it only fair to warn his constituents to keep an eye on him. The Railway Age believes, however, he is sincerely anxious to secure the adoption of legislation which would confiscate a large part of the value of the railroads, and throw most of them into bankruptcy. These are, of course, the worst wishes of a man who, as a would-be subject, has a vested interest in the subject. If Mr. Brookhart is to accomplish them, he must change his bill. He cannot reasonably hope to accomplish them by transferring from the Interstate Commerce Commission to Wall Street the power to make the valuation of the railroads." Railway Age

Ten men and women, who lived in St. Paul in 1851, were guests of honor at the recent celebration of the city's sixty-ninth birthday as an incorporated city. In this brief span of time it has developed from a village of 1,716 to a metropolitan center. Had its quaint Indian name been retained, St. Paul would today be known as Innijska, an appellation derived from the white bluffs, a word which means "better" than its incorporation. St. Paul was designated the Capital of the Territory of Minnesota and it has remained the Capital to this day.

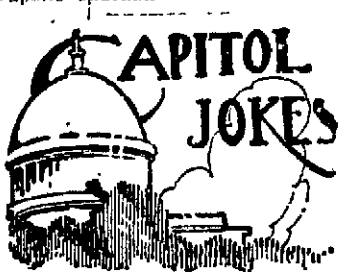

Students of municipal affairs find, in the parallel growth of Minneapolis and St. Paul an interesting contrast in the shaping forces of city development. St. Anthony Falls gave Minneapolis an industrial base that has characterized it through the years. St. Paul's growth has been due largely to trade, transportation and political factors.

The old rivalry between them has largely passed and they are fast becoming the Twin Cities. In

APITOL JOKES

By JAMES A. FREAR
U. S. Representative from Wisconsin, Tenth District

The bargain-hunting instinct is supposed to be more or less a feminine possession, but the most memorable bargain-hunter I ever heard of was a newspaper correspondent.

He was sent to Berlin some time after the war, when the mark was falling rapidly, and he figured that there ought to be a lot of stuff he could pick up cheaply.

So he went out in search of bargains and returned to the bar at the Adlon Hotel, where the other correspondents were grouped, late one afternoon.

"Fellow," he cried, excitedly, "I've just run across the most remarkable bargain you ever heard of. What do you think of this? I know where you can get a barrel of tatooing ink for $12."

THE HONOR OF M. LUTARD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vendetta begins between MICHAEL SAYERS, noted criminal and SUE NORMAN GREYVES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, Janet, saves him from Sir Norman.

Janet, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead the officer sent to arrest him. Janet becomes Sayers' wife and accomplice. In the London bank robbery, Michael is known to Greyves as "Stanfield" and promises to do all in his power to keep the leader from harm.

Greyves meets Janet on the street and takes her to Luma.

GO ON WITH THE STORY
Sir Norman Talks

I saw her luggage through the customs, for which, as she knew no French, she was grateful. I offered her a seat in the car which had been sent for me, but she shook her head.

"I am going to the Gare d'Est," she said.

"Where you will take a fresh cab and drive to the address which you do not intend me to honor," I remarked. "You need not go out of your way. I will give you another parole. I will make no effort to discover your address, so you can take your taxi and drive straight there. I shall be at the Hotel Meurice, if you have an hour to spare, we will drive in the Bois tomorrow."

For the next few days I was immersed in the complications of the business which had brought me to Paris. To my surprise, Janet called for me at the hotel and we took our drive in the Bois. It was easy to realize that, whatever the business which had brought her to Paris may have been, it was of a disturbing nature. She was nervous and ill at ease, looking around all the time as though she was afraid of being observed. Somehow, I gathered when we parted that she was obsessed by some new fear, some underlying dread of circumstances, of which, however, she gave me no inkling.

At the end of the third day of my stay a little conference was held in my salon between Guy Ennison, who had worked in the English secret-service during the war, and whose headquarters had been in Paris—myself and Monsieur Destin, an ex-chief of the police, now a member of Lutard's government. The latter was a short and corpulent little Frenchman, with black mustache and imperial, vivid black eyes and a most vivacious manner.

"Sir Norman," Greyves, grasping my hand, "but are welcome. If you can help us to save our chief, you are more than welcome. He is in danger—of that I am assured."

Much of the rest of his speech was irrelevant. The gist of the matter, however, was contained in his concluding sentence:

"That is what distressed my husband so much in having to ask you to go to him," he interrupted. "It was the particular desire of the person on whom he had placed his complete trust, his presence in Paris, should not be known, and my husband deliberately chose this hotel, where he sometimes stayed when engaged on secret-service work during the war. He desired me to say that if you preferred not to risk being seen in such a locality, he would endeavor to procure an ambulance to get him from the hospital and come here."

"Such a thing would be unheard of," Lutard protested. "I will go with you, of course."

"Well," my temporary chief asked, looking across at me.

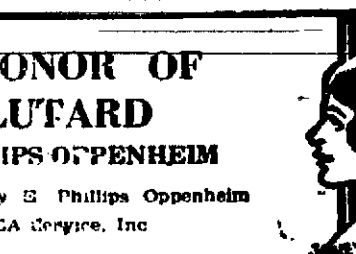

"The moment has arrived," I answered.

"You suggest that the woman is an impostor," he exclaimed.

"She is the wife of a well-known English criminal," I declared. "Her story was plausible but very improbable. What about the letter she brought?"

might suffer. In a month or two—however, all that will be changed—we shall have entered upon a new era—and for these few months I choose to take my risk. I will not submit to espionage.

Nevertheless, for the next three days I cast away my name and resorted to the meager walks of my profession. I shadowed the great French statesman, from the moment when he rose, until nightfall. There was a young girl, very beautiful, with great dark eyes and an appealing face, who stopped him one night with some pitiful story. She was limping, and she pointed continually to her foot. Lutard called the fiacre which she indicated. She leaned her fingers upon her arm. I was close enough to see the pressure of them, to note the subtlety of her upward glance. He handed her to the cab. I heard her reading words. She was lonely. If monsieur would drive with her a little while! But Lutard shook his head gravely. He paid the taxi man a fare which surprised him, lifted his hat courteously and walked away. I saw the change in the girl's face as he disappeared. That was just one of his coupes.

We had a more exciting few minutes one night when he insisted upon walking home from the Quai d'Orsay. I saw the four dark, silent figures gliding together, two of them in front of him and two behind, and I saw a walking motor car at the corner of the street. Prudence led me to anticipate their action, whatever it might be. When they heard the spit of bullets against the wall, they took to their heels and ran. To thegendarme who came hurrying, I had only to show my badge of authority, and he proceeded for us at once, taking me. Lutard, convinced now that his enemies were in earnest, yielded to my first proposition. I was installed in his house as majordomo.

We had three or four days of absolute quietude. Then the moment which we had been expecting, arrived. It was about six o'clock in the evening, and I was seated in Monsieur Lutard's study, copying some letters at a desk and posing as his secretary. A servant brought in a note, which the minister read hastily and passed to me. It was written on British—Foreign—office—paper and signed by every important personage. The gist of it was contained in these lines:

"The bearer can be altogether trusted. He brings you a verbal message of great importance. You will further our mutual interest if you give it your most serious consideration."

It was a mere chance that led me to retire to what Lutard was pleased to call my spy-hole. Notwithstanding my disguise, it was perhaps as well that I did so, for to my amazement it was Janet who was presently ushered in. Monsieur Lutard rose to his feet in some surprise.

"You are the bearer of this letter, madame?" he queried.

"In a sense I am not," she replied, taking the chair to which he pointed and leaning a little over his desk.

"If my husband who should have come, he would have waited upon you as he brought me the message to which this note refers, but he was attacked last night by an old complaint of his—sciatica—and he is absolutely unable to move. He asked me to listen to you, and to beg that under the circumstances you would do him the honor to come to the hotel. He is ashamed to have to ask you, but the doctor who is with him now absolutely forbids him to stand up. I have a certificate here."

"I will come without delay, madame," Lutard promised, waving away the half-sheet of notepaper which she had tendered.

"I come in a taxicab—it is waiting," she continued. "You doubtless would prefer your own car."

"It is no matter," he answered. "At which hotel do you stay?"

"The Hotel Napoleon, in the Rue Tranchard," she replied.

The minister started. I too received a shock, for the district was the most notorious in Paris.

"My dear madame," he protested, "the neighborhood of the Rue Tranchard is certainly not a place for you and"

"That is what distressed my husband so much in having to ask you to go to him," he interrupted. "It was the particular desire of the person on whom he had placed his complete trust, his presence in Paris, should not be known, and my husband deliberately chose this hotel, where he sometimes stayed when engaged on secret-service work during the war. The gist of it was contained in these lines:

"The bearer can be altogether trusted. He brings you a verbal message of great importance. You will further our mutual interest if you give it your most serious consideration."

It was a mere chance that led me to retire to what Lutard was pleased to call my spy-hole. Notwithstanding my disguise, it was perhaps as well that I did so, for to my amazement it was Janet who was presently ushered in. Monsieur Lutard rose to his feet in some surprise.

"You are the bearer of this letter, madame?" he queried.

"In a sense I am not," she replied, taking the chair to which he pointed and leaning a little over his desk.

"If my husband who should have come, he would have waited upon you as he brought me the message to which this note refers, but he was attacked last night by an old complaint of his—sciatica—and he is absolutely unable to move. He asked me to listen to you, and to beg that under the circumstances you would do him the honor to come to the hotel. He is ashamed to have to ask you, but the doctor who is with him now absolutely forbids him to stand up. I have a certificate here."

"I will come without delay, madame," Lutard promised, waving away the half-sheet of notepaper which she had tendered.

"I come in a taxicab—it is waiting," she continued. "You doubtless would prefer your own car."

"It is no matter," he answered. "At which hotel do you stay?"

"The Hotel Napoleon, in the Rue Tranchard," she replied.

The minister started. I too received a shock, for the district was the most notorious in Paris.

"My dear madame," he protested, "the neighborhood of the Rue Tranchard is certainly not a place for you and"

"That is what distressed my husband so much in having to ask you to go to him," he interrupted. "It was the particular desire of the person on whom he had placed his complete trust, his presence in Paris, should not be known, and my husband deliberately chose this hotel, where he sometimes stayed when engaged on secret-service work during the war. He desired me to say that if you preferred not to risk being seen in such a locality, he would endeavor to procure an ambulance to get him from the hospital and come here."

"Such a thing would be unheard of," Lutard protested. "I will go with you, of course."

"Well," my temporary chief asked, looking across at me.

"The moment has arrived," I answered.

"You suggest that the woman is an impostor," he exclaimed.

"She is the wife of a well-known English criminal," I declared. "Her story was plausible but very improbable. What about the letter she brought?"

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

The mixed-up automobile that flew with wings instead of rolling on wheels, spoke to the Twins. "I don't think I'll go any farther," it said stubbornly.

"Why?" asked Nancy. "You said you would take us to Jack Straw's house."

"I know, but I might get wrecked," shivered the automobile. "I think I'll go home."

"Then how will we get there?" cried Nancy in dismay.

"Magic Shoes ought to help you," said the auto snapp

DENY RUMORS OF FORD BUY

General Manager of Iron Range Company Makes
Statement

Duluth, Mar. 10.—A persistent report in local mining circles that Henry Ford, Detroit manufacturer, had purchased the ore concentration plant and the valuable ore fields of the Mesabe Iron company at Hibbit, Minn. was characterized by W. G. Swart, vice-president and general manager of the range firm, as "merely a rumor."

He admitted, however, that any announcement of such a deal would necessarily be made from the company's New York offices.

KOPRIVA BACK IN CO. OFFICE

Murphy Says Ouster Case
May Be Appealed

Bowbells, N. D., March 10.—Charles J. Kopriva, who yesterday was reinstated as auditor of Burke county, assumed office here again this morning at 9 o'clock after Sheriff Tunwaldson had served a copy of Justice A. G. Burr's order on W. C. Martin, acting auditor, notifying the latter of the court's ruling to reinstate the ousted official.

Kopriva and Martin shook hands as the former took the auditor's desk, and after briefly discussing business details of the office, Martin walked out. C. K. Meloy, who has been acting as deputy county auditor, was released by Kopriva, who has again put his son in that office.

MAY APPEAL CASE

Minot, N. D., March 10.—That an appeal probably will be taken to the supreme court to define the jurisdictional powers of the district court in the action of C. J. Kopriva of Bowbells vs. the declaration today of Francis J. Murphy of this city, representing petitioners and the state in the action. The order reinstating Kopriva in office was signed subsequent to the declaration of Mr. Murphy to introduce testimony. Counsel for petitioners took this step after the court had overruled his objections that the court had no jurisdiction and that Kopriva was entitled to a jury trial.

CUSTOM MEN MISTRUST "FAT" FRAUD

Geneva, Mar. 10.—Swiss customs officials at Bale are used to the sight of fat women coming from Germany, but when one day last week ten of them arrived together, all of extraordinary girth, the customs officers began to grow suspicious.

The portly dames, when questioned, said they were members of a Fat Women's society out for a picnic. However, under the skilful treatment of the customs searchers the women began to lose weight rapidly, for it was found that their underclothes were covered with small pockets containing such things as cocaine, opium and liquor. Forty quarts of the latter were taken from the party. Their trip to Switzerland may last longer than they intended, as they are liable to heavy fine and imprisonment.

SEES BRITAIN FLOODED WITH AMERICAN AUTOS

Birmingham, Eng., Mar. 10.—Fifty thousand automobiles may be brought into England during 1923, against a local production of 75,000 cars, in the opinion of Sir Herbert Austin, M. P., and British manufacturers should combine in order to reduce their production costs.

Sir Herbert was addressing a meeting of the National Union of Manufacturers when he warned British car makers of this American competition. Referring to British efforts to regain colonial markets in this field, he said American selling prices were remarkably low. Prices to agents were less at the factory than British makers were paying for material for similar sized cars. Although American labor was highly paid, he said the American worked twice as hard as the English employee. Manufacturers of component parts sold on a low margin, some charges hardly covering the cost. Sir Herbert thought the British workers had something to learn in this respect.

DENY RUMORS OF FORD BUY

General Manager of Iron Range Company Makes Statement

Duluth, Mar. 10.—A persistent report in local mining circles that Henry Ford, Detroit manufacturer, had purchased the ore concentration plant and the valuable ore fields of the Messabi Iron company at Hibbing, Minn., was characterized by W. G. Swart, vice-president and general manager of the range firm, as "merely a rumor."

He admitted, however, that any announcement of such a deal would necessarily be made from the company's New York offices.

KOPRIVA BACK IN CO. OFFICE

Murphy Says Ouster Case May Be Appealed

Bowbells, N. D., March 10.—Charles J. Kopriva, who yesterday was reinstated as auditor of Burleigh county, assumed office here this morning at 9 o'clock after Sheriff Wundtland had served a copy of Judge A. G. Burr's order on W. C. Martin, acting auditor, notifying the latter of the court's ruling to reinstate the ousted official.

Kopriva and Martin shook hands as the former took the auditor's desk, and after briefly discussing business details of the office, Martin walked out. G. K. McElroy, who was acting as deputy county auditor, was released by Kopriva, who has again put his son-in-law in that office.

MAY APPEAL CASE

Minot, N. D., March 10.—That an appeal probably will be taken to the supreme court to define the jurisdictional powers of the district court in the action of C. J. Kopriva vs. Wundtland was the declaration today of Francis J. Murphy of this city, representing petitioners and the state in the action. The other reinstating Kopriva in office was signed subsequent to the declaration of Mr. Murphy to introduce testimony. Counsel for petitioners took this step after the court had overruled his objection that the court had no jurisdiction and that Kopriva was entitled to a jury trial.

CUSTOM MEN MISTRUST "FAT" FRAUD

Genoa, Mar. 10.—Swiss customs officials at Bala are used to the sight of fat women coming from Germany, but when one day last week ten of them arrived together, all of extraordinary girth, the customs officers began to grow suspicious.

The north damies, when questioned, said they were members of a Fat Women's society out for a picnic. However, under the skilful treatment of the customs searchers, the women began to lose weight rapidly, for it was found that their underclothes were covered with small pockets containing such things as cocaine, scent and liquor. Forty quarts of the latter were taken from the party. Their trip to Switzerland may last longer than they intended, as they are liable to heavy fine and imprisonment.

SEES BRITAIN FLOODED WITH AMERICAN AUTOS

Birmingham, Eng., Mar. 10.—Fifty thousand automobiles may be brought into England during 1923 against a local production of 75,000 cars, in the opinion of Sir Herbert Austin, M. P., and British manufacturers should combine in order to reduce their production costs.

Sir Herbert was addressing a meeting of the National Union of Manufacturers, when he warned British car makers of this American competition. Referring to British efforts to regain colonial markets in this field, he said American selling prices were remarkably low. Prices to agents were less at the factory than British makers were paying for material for similar sized cars. Although American labor was highly paid, he said the American worked twice as hard as the English employee. Manufacturers of component parts sold on a low margin, some charges hardly covering the cost. Sir Herbert thought the British workers had something to learn in this respect.

TURKS REPLY ON LAUSANNE DISCUSSIONS

Unable to Agree With Economic Clauses of Proposed Treaty

HANDED TO ALLIES

Note Sent by Special Courier
to Allied Government
By Envoy

Constantinople, March 10.—Although Turkey's answer to proposals submitted to her at Lausanne asked no important modification clauses of the treaty the Angora government finds difficulty in the economic section and in the paragraph covering the troublesome capitulations questions.
The note, now in the hands of the British, French and Italian high commissioners, insists that Turkish subjects in allied countries go accorded the same right that allies seek for their nationals in Turkey. It also proposes further discussion of those economic clauses upon which there is as yet no agreement, suggesting resumption of the conversations at Constantinople or some other European city.

The Angora note, which is 115 pages in length, proposes slight changes in Turkey's boundaries as outlined in the treaties. It accepts in full the section covering prisoners of war and with minor changes the part dealing with communications.

The note asks that provisions be made for paying the interest on the Turkish debt in paper money.

The allied high commissioners have dispatched to their respective governments special couriers carrying the text of the proposals.

Hidden Values

They Keep Essex Young

Essex wins admiration from the first.

But the greatest Essex enthusiasts are those who have driven their cars 50,000 miles or more.
They have discovered the hidden values.

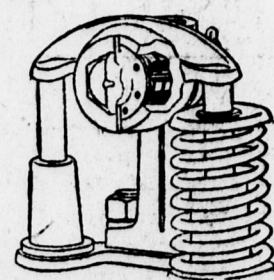

Design and construction details not observable in the new car assert their importance as use increases. Essex values extend to the minute details.
The finest bearings made are used throughout.
They are to an automobile what jewels are to a watch. Parts that wear are inexpensively replaced.

In chassis and body, Essex throughout possesses qualities essential to long hard service. That means economical service, always.

Essex is the only American car with roller bearings in the valve mechanism. This construction overcomes wear and frictional loss at one of the most important points. Prevents noise and saves a big item of replacement expense. All other cars use plain bushings for this vital function. Just another of the hidden values that account for the everlasting goodness of Essex cars.

DO YOU KNOW WHY

THE GEAR-SHIFT IS DIFFERENT?

The design of Dodge Brothers gear-shift takes into consideration the natural inclinations of the driver.

To start, you throw the lever forward. To reverse, you pull the lever backward. And when the car is running in high gear—which is about ninety per cent of the time—the lever is in a forward position, out of the way, where it does not interfere with passengers, robes, or luggage.

Moreover, the transmission, developed and patented by Dodge Brothers, is so designed that the countershaft—used in intermediate speeds and in reverse—is disconnected when the car is in high. There are no gears in mesh. Power is transmitted directly from clutch to rear axle.

This exclusive feature prevents the loss of power through friction, reduces gear-box noises and eliminates a vast amount of wear.

That is why the gear-shift of Dodge Brothers
Motor Car is different.

The price of the Business Coupe is $1155.00 delivered in Bismarck.
